Dulles Would 'Insulate' Waterway From Politics as Step Toward Ending Crisis

This is how the new Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge looked Monday when The Freeman photographer aimed at the center of the structure. The first piece of steel joining the east and west sides was put in place Saturday. Steelworkers continued their operations today, hurrying the span for the tentative opening date of December 15.

60 Area Farmers See Losses if Order Extended

Extension of a milk marketing order to unregulated upstate areas would reduce the income of approximately 60 Ulster county dairy farmers, George J. Silkworth, manager of Babcock Farms Dairy, testified at milk hearings Monday in Binghamton.

Mr. Silkworth, one of three area dairymen to be called yesterday at the hearings being conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the New York milk office, said these dairy farmers would lose from several hundred to several thousand dollars each if the proposed order was extended. The order now covers the metropolitan area.

Cites Stability Here

Mr. Silkworth said producers and dealers in the Kingston area had maintained a stable market in the price and production of milk, a stability that would be threatened should the milk order be extended to the upstate section.

"Now more than ever producers need the better-than-ever age price in view of the fact that the Kingston area is fast becoming an industrial area where the producer must compete in wages with the labor market," he argued.

Mr. Silkworth pointed out that in the summer there is a "considerable influx of vacationers" who normally buy in the metropolitan district and are not residents of Ulster county.

Extra for Visitors

"In turn, this leaves the locality where they come from with extra milk which we try to absorb in serving this extra summer business. If these people did not enjoy our resort areas it would not be necessary for us to obtain outside milk to supply them. We buy milk from the Dairymen's League because they are one of the suppliers from the area from which these people come.

"Actually we are helping the pool if we borrow out of the

VA to Pay Out $236 Million in 1957 Dividends

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Some 5,350,000 veterans will receive about 236 million dollars in dividends on Veterans Administration insurance during 1957.

Veterans Administrator Harvey V. Higley, announcing this today, said all the payments will be "regular annual dividends, not special dividends."

However, some 20,000 veterans holding U. S. government life insurance (USGLI) term policies will get their first dividend in 25 years, sharing about one million dollars.

A VA spokesman said there was no political significance in the fact that these veterans received their last dividend in 1932, during the Republican administration of President Herbert Hoover, and that their next "annual" dividend, 25 years later, was announced in this election year by the Eisenhower administration.

He pointed to the formal announcement, which said that:

"Up until recently the mortality and disability experience among these term policyholders has not been good enough to warrant the payment of a dividend. However, the continuing good trend of recent years has made it possible to pay a dividend on this plan for the first time in 25 years."

There will be 210 million dollars in 1957 dividends for some five million veterans holding National Service Life Insurance, (NSLI), about 25 million dollars more than was made available for 1956 dividends.

The million dollars to be paid the USGLI term policyholders will be part of a kitty of 26 million dollars to be split among holders of various types of USGLI policies. The 26 million dollars is two million more than was set aside for USGLI policyholders this year.

Higley said each of the USGLI term policyholders will be notified by letter of his prospective dividend. It will amount to an average of 20 per cent of the

To Boom for Ike-Nixon

GOP Bandwagon Due Here on October 29th

The Eisenhower-Nixon Bandwagon Tour, sponsored by the New York State Citizens for Eisenhower and Nixon, will be in Kingston for two hours on Monday, Oct. 29, Ulster county chairman, Anthony J. deLisio of Woodstock, announced today.

The caravan will assemble at the Academy Green at noon and proceed to the central post office where a speaking program will be staged.

All Candidates Present

Mr. deLisio said that all local, state and Congressional candidates will be on hand, if possible, and a large motorcade would follow the Bandwagon through the city after the speaking until 2 p. m.

The Bandwagon will come to Kingston from Hudson where it will be on display between 8 and 11 a. m., then proceed to Newburgh for another two hours. On Friday, Oct. 26, it is scheduled to be in Albany all day.

"All interested citizens are invited to take part in the motorcade," Mr. deLisio said. "I would like to hear from all persons interested so that we can work out details for the parade," he added.

Mr. deLisio, who as Ulster county chairman of the state Eisenhower and Nixon Citizens Committee has been conducting an intensive campaign to get every voter to register, said:

Should Make Sure

"Every potential voter should personally make sure he is properly registered for the November elections. It is true that, in many places, if you voted last election you probably are on the lists; but a presidential year is too important to leave even the slightest margin of error."

"Both Republican and Democratic committeemen are working to insure as complete rolls as possible; but do not leave it entirely to them. The responsibility to register is primarily yours," he warned.

Pointing out that there is a considerable number of new families in the Kingston area as the result of the influx of IBM, Mr. deLisio went on:

"If you are a new voter in this district, be sure that you familiarize yourself with all the rules of registration. If in November you find you cannot vote, don't blame your committeeman or a neighbor, who might give you the wrong information. Learn where and when to register and check to be sure you are all set for Election Day."

Talks to Italian Groups

Mr. deLisio, Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Republican county chairman, and Assemblyman Kenneth Wilson of Woodstock, a candidate for re-election, addressed a meeting of Italian voters at the Ship's Lantern Inn at Milton last night. Speaking in Italian, he told the group that the re-election of President Eisenhower is vital to the peace, progress and prosperity of the country.

The county chairman also announced plans for a rally in Kingston later in the month which would feature a nationally prominent woman speaking in behalf of the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket. Details will be announced later.

To Discuss Town Problems

Ulster Planning Talk Scheduled on Thursday

Frederick P. Clark of Clark Associates, Rye, planning consultant for the town of Ulster, will address the Town of Ulster Republican Club at the new Lake Katrine School at 8 p. m. Thursday.

The public is cordially invited and urged to attend this first public exposition of planning and zoning in the township.

Mr. Clark, a native of Tillson and graduate of Kingston High School, has a national reputation in the field of city planning.

To Explain Plan

Mr. Clark will describe the function, applicability and uses of a town development plan, it is reported.

The town of Ulster, now undergoing rapid changes and growth, has been studying the problem and seeking adequate solutions since the appointment of a planning board and zoning commission about two years ago.

One of Critical Areas

The bureau of planning of the New York State Department of Commerce has listed the town of Ulster as one of the critical areas of the state in the matter of town planning, with its recent rapid influx of industry and population and the mushrooming of new housing developments.

Last week final approval was received for state and federal grants of aid amounting to $19,000 for municipal planning in the township. The town of Ulster is the first township in New York state to receive such aid.

The importance of town development to every landowner was pointed out by officials of the Republican Club in extending an open invitation to all "town of Ulsterites" and other interested persons.

The planning board, headed by

Licensees Ready With Brief Today

A brief in behalf of establishments selling liquor will be filed this afternoon by Attorney Arthur B. Ewig.

These establishments—restaurants, night clubs and grill selling alcoholic beverages — are fighting a ruling by the Ulster County Alcoholic Beverage Control Board that they must close at 1 a. m. instead of 3 a. m.

The State Attorney General's office, which is representing the local ABC Board, has until Thursday to reply.

On Oct. 5 Supreme Court Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth reserved decision on a directive of the local ABC Board changing the closing hours. The new 1 a. m. closing was directed by Lawrence M. Jenson and Harry Howard, members of ABC Board, on July 27, effective October 1.

In late September Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirick signed a temporary stay. The show cause order was returnable before a special term of Supreme Court last Friday.

The stay is continued until a decision is handed down by Judge Elsworth, thus enabling establishments selling liquor to remain open until 3 a. m.

The action against the local board was brought by proprietors of Tropical Inn, The Barn, Phoenicia Hotel, Kirkland Hotel, Spindler's, Cloverleaf Inn, Alpine Inn, Cedar Rest and for "all liquor licensees similarly situated."

Allaben Meeting Vote Shows Favor Of 3-School Plan

A poll taken last evening at a public meeting at Allaben town hall would indicate the taxpayers of the Shandaken, Bushnellville, Broadstreet Hollow and Fox Hollow area in the Onteora Central School District favor the three elementary school plan as advocated by the school officials.

Tonight a meeting will be held at Mt. Tremper Community Hall for residents of the Mt. Tremper and Mt. Pleasant area. Residents of that area will be given an opportunity to express their thought by a poll vote.

15 Favor Plan

Of the 65 persons who attended the meeting at Shandaken last evening, 23 voted in the unofficial poll which is being taken at each of the public meetings to ascertain the trend of present thinking by the taxpayers.

Fifteen of those voting favored the three elementary school plan, with the proposed locations at Lake Hill, Allaben and Olive Bridge. One vote was cast for a single large 21-room elementary school; four voters were undecided; three voted for two regional schools at Shandaken and Woodstock.

Last Week's Poll

At a meeting at Oliverea-Big Indian school last week the voters were in the majority undecided. At that meeting 11 were undecided, six voted for three-school plan, two voted for one large central school, four voted for an addition to the present

Says Plan Is Heart OfProblem

Calls Egyptian Move Helpful

United Nations, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today there is little chance of settling the Suez problem so long as it is possible for any nation to use the vital waterway as an instrument of its national policy.

Dulles told the UN Security Council that this is the heart of the problem and that the first step should be an acceptance by all parties of the principle that a system should be set up to ensure against any such action.

Opposed by Shepilov

He did not flatly reject a proposal made by Egypt yesterday for the establishment of a UN negotiating body to work out a system of cooperation for the operation of the canal. He called the Egyptian move "constructive," but he indicated that this did not go far enough.

Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov quickly made it clear he would not accept Dulles' statement that the canal must be "insulated" from politics of any one country.

Shepilov told an impromptu news conference this actually was a proposal for internationalizing the waterway and that he could not accept it. He said politics would appear in any international body organized to run the canal.

Backs Proposal

Dulles stood firmly behind a British-French proposal which called for negotiations on the basis of the London proposals for international control of the canal. He said he would vote for the British-French plan.

On the basic principle of guarantees against use of the canal as an instrument of national policy, the secretary of state said:

"If Egypt accepts that simple and rudimentary principle of justice, then I believe that the subsidiary problems can be resolved.

559,659 Register First Day in N. Y.

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—New York city's first-day registration for the Nov. 6 election set a record high last night as 559,659 potential voters listed their names with the board of elections.

The previous first-day record was 550,273 for the presidential election four years ago.

The total for yesterday afternoon's and last night's registration included the names of 26,721 persons who had registered centrally earlier this year. The 1952 first-day total included 22,788 persons who had registered centrally with the board of elections instead of at the regular polling places. This year's central registration included 7,139 persons who asked for absentee ballots.

Election officials said the first-day turnout gave hope that the city's registration might exceed the all-time high of 3,556,377 in the 1944 presidential year.

Weather Gets Credit

Good weather was given a large share of credit for yesterday's showing. Registration continues at the city's 4,601 polling places until Saturday. Hours for registration are from 3:30 to 10:30 p. m. through Friday, and from 7 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. on Saturday. Yesterday only two of the city's five boroughs—Manhattan and Queens—exceeded their 1952 totals.

While Brooklyn turned out the largest number of registrants as usual, the figure of 178,044 was more than 3,500 fewer than the 181,889 in 1952.

Manhattan's turnout of 132,927 was just about 6,000 over the 126,938 of 1952.

Queens Ahead

Queens, whose population has been growing rapidly, had a registration of 128,285 yesterday, compared to 116,067 in 1952.

The Bronx had a total of 107,330 yesterday compared to 111,778 in 1952. In Richmond (Staten Island it was 13,073 yesterday compared to 13,601 in 1952.

Westchester county as well as New York city is holding registration this week. Dates for other parts of the state vary.

Yankees, Dodgers 0-0 After First 2 Frames

The Yankees, with a one-game lead in the 1956 World Series and the Brooklyn Dodgers, needing a victory to stay alive, were locked in a scoreless game after two innings of play today.

With the scene shifting back to Ebbets Field for the sixth game, Manager Casey Stengel called on Bullet Bob Turley to wrap up the world championship while Manager Walter Alston countered with Clem Labine, one of the Dodgers' great relief hurlers.

A Brooklyn victory today would send the series into the seventh and final clash tomorrow at Ebbets Field. A Yankee victory would regain the world championship which the Dodgers copped last fall.

Bauer opened the first for the Yankees by dropping a single into short center but Collins hit into a double play, Gilliam to Reese to Hodges. Gilliam threw out Mantle.

Gilliam went out at the start of the Dodger half as Martin made a fine stop and off-balance throw to first. Reese struck out, and Snider lined a single to left for the first Brooklyn hit in two days. Robinson lined to McDougald for the third out.

Berra bounced a line drive single off the right field wall to start the Yankee second but was forced by Slaughter when Gilliam made a nice play on a slow grounder, Martin flied to Snider and McDougald struck out.

In the Dodger half, Hodges walked and was forced at second by Amoros. Then Turley, pitching with a no windup delivery somewhat similar to Don Larsen's, struck out Furillo and Campanella.

* * *

Brooklyn, Oct. 9 (AP)—Bob Turley, a fireballing righthander who has been even more erratic than Don Larsen in regular season, was named today as the New York Yankee pitcher to face Brooklyn's Clem Labine in today's sixth World Series game at Ebbets Field.

Decides on Turley

Manager Casey Stengel finally decided on Turley after delaying until the Yankees took the field to get ready for batting practice.

Turley, 26, had an 8-4 record in regular season, finishing only five of 21 starts. His earned run average of 4.98 was the highest on the Yankee staff.

Mamie Feeling Better

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—The White House today reported Mamie Eisenhower is "feeling much better" and recovering from a cold. But Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the First Lady's doctor "still thinks it best" for her not to accompany the President to Pittsburgh this afternoon for a campaign address there tonight. Hagerty said Mrs. Eisenhower was keeping her schedule of White House appointments today, including a scheduled farewell visit with Lady Makins, wife of the retiring British ambassador.

Legality Is Upheld

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—The U. S. Court of Appeals today upheld legality of the Idaho Power Company's construction license for three dams in Hells Canyon. The court turned down a request by public power groups that a license granted by the Federal Power Commission (FPC) be set aside and the stretch of the Snake river along the Idaho-Oregon border be reserved for a bigger government dam. The next step in the long and bitter fight between private and public power advocates—a prime political issue in the Pacific southwest—is certain to be an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Factory Pay Up

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—The government reported today that average factory pay climbed above $2-an-hour for the first time in September. At the same time, unemployment dropped below two million and to the lowest level since November, 1953. The Commerce and Labor Departments issued the joint report, which showed 66,071,000 persons were employed. This was a record for September but down 700,000 from August's seasonal peak.

Sentences Suspended

Alfred Bell, 25, 147 Jansen avenue, was fined $25 and given a 30-day jail sentence in City Court today on a charge of malicious mischief. Both sentences were suspended. Bell and Marvin Stripling, 19, of 188 Center street, Ellenville, were arrested Saturday at Hotel Eichler, Railroad avenue. Stripling drew a $25 suspended fine in City Court Monday. They were charged by Joseph Babiraz with having broken a window.

Mayor Edmund Orgill of Memphis, Tenn., installed continuous wired music in his waiting room to sooth impatient constituents.

Dulles Would

If that principle is repudiated, then it is difficult to forsee a useful role for a negotiating body.

"Indeed, under those conditions it is difficult to foresee any settlement in accordance with the principles of justice and of international law."

Dulles spoke as the 11-nation council wound up its opening round of policy statements and prepared to go into closed-door sessions for detailed discussions.

Possibilities Good .. ....

Despite the apparent gap between the western proposals and those of Egypt and the Soviet Union, Dulles told the council that the "possibilities are good" for a peaceful solution of the problem.

He said:

"Rarely, if ever, have comparable efforts been made to settle peacefully an issue of such dangerous proportions. The council knows that it is not dealing with governments bent on the use of force. Even those most aggrieved have shown their desire to bring about a just solution by peaceful means."

Dulles dealt at length with the proposals of the two London conferences of 18 nations during August and September.

Sees Great Variety

"I believe," he said, "that the council can accept the principles enunciated by the 18 nations as principles of justice.

"There exists of course a great variety of means whereby the principles stated by the 18 could be carried out. I do not suppose that anyone regards the particular arrangements they suggested as sacrocant. And I believe that this council ought not to close its mind to any alternative suggestion that might be made.

"But as far as the basic principles are concerned, I do not see how they can be disregarded by the council when it invokes the principles of justice."

Dulles spoke after Yugoslav Foreign Minister Koca Popovic had told the council Shepilov's suggestion for a special negotiating committee of six to eight countries was "worthy of consideration."

Convinced of Solution

"We are convinced," Popovic said, "that a solution can be found, because we do not see anything fundamentally irreconcilable between the interests involved."

He said the British-French resolution would not provide a basis for agreement since it "tends to prejudge—in a one-sided manner—settlements which can be reached only through negotiations."

"We therefore share the hope expressed here yesterday by the representative of Iran that the results we shall be able to obtain will be such as to make it unnecessary to take a vote on the Anglo-French resolution," he said.

The council adjourned until 3 p. m. (EST), when it was scheduled to begin its secret talks.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 9 (AP) — The stock market drifted lower in quiet trading early this afternoon.

Pivotal stocks were behind from fractions to a point or so. There were a few fractional advances. There were no leaders.

Steels showed no encouragement from news of peak production. Coppers were easy as the price of scrap copper was reduced and news came of lower prices for copper in London.

Oils, rails, miscellaneous manufacturing and farm implement stocks were generally off by small fractions. Eastern Air Lines picked up around a point. Johns-Manville and Loew's were off slightly.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 50 cents to $177.20 with the industrials down 70 cents, the rails down 60 cents and the utilities unchanged.

On the American Stock Exchange prices were generally lower.

Corporate bonds were lower in quiet trading. U. S. Government Bonds leaned to the upside in light dealings.

big 18-man deal with Baltimore after the 1954 season, Turley was supposed to be the big prize. He proved to be erratic, due to wildness.

Turley appeared twice on relief in the current series in the first two games at Ebbets Field and allowed no hits and no runs in 1 1/3 innings.

Stengel said he would make no plans for the seventh game pitcher until he knew he needed one.

Newk Goes Tomorrow (?)

Manager Walter Alston said Don Newcombe (27-7) was his probable pitcher for tomorrow if a seventh game is necessary. Alston made no changes in his starting lineup, except the pitcher.

Labine, primarily a relief artist with a low, sinking curve, started only three games during the regular season and pitched but one complete nine-inning job. However, the crewcut from Lincoln, R. I., appeared in 62 games and already has relieved once in the current series, pitching two innings after replacing Roger Craig in the third game. His season's record is 10-6.

Artist Identified

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Police say a dapper young man who shot two bank employes in a $7,000 forgery attempt is a commercial artist with a spacious studio in suburban Pelham, N. Y. They identified him last night as Richard Lee Henthorne, 26, (of 89 Wolfs Land), Pelham. Authorities said Henthorne's studio doubled as a warehouse for an estimated $200,000 worth of apparently stolen fur coats, jewelry and cameras. They said they believe the loot was stolen in a series of burglaries in well-to-do Westchester county communities.

The NSLI dividend will average 13 per cent higher to holders of both term and permanent policies, with higher age groups getting the bulk of the payment that will run above 13 per cent and lower age groups the bulk of those falling below the average.

Higley said dividend payments will be made during 1957 on or about the anniversary date of each policy. He requested policyholders not to inquire in advance about their dividends, saying this could delay the processing time.

The only GI insurance policyholders who will not share in the 1957 dividends are those who have nonparticipating term and permanent plans issued since the outbreak of the Korean hostilities.

The purpose of the regional meetings is to acquaint the taxpayers with the proposed plan and to ascertain the trend of thought of the people. At each meeting a question period is allowed.

The meetings are being held prior to the voting on the $1,125,000 expansion program bond issue on or about November 15. Out of the series of meetings is expected to come an opinion from the residents of the area as to their thinking on the subject after the proposed program has been discussed and explained.

Ulster Firemen Given Pointers On New Air Pack

A demonstration of the Scott air pack, a device enabling firemen to enter a smoke-filled building to rescue or survey for a 30-minute period, was given for members of Ulster Hose Company No. 5 during the regular meeting Monday night.

Clifford Abplanalp, representative of the Liberty Fire Equipment Company, also demonstrated how to mount and regulate the pack.

The membership voted on several social events for the coming season, including co-sponsorship of the first annual banquet for the Town of Ulster Little League, of which the fire company entered a team. The banquet is scheduled for Oct. 11.

Will Hold Dance

A Halloween dance, with proceeds to be used for the annual Christmas cheer program, was scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 27, at the firehouse. The public is invited and music will be furnished by the Pine Creekers. Refreshments will be available. The dance will begin at 8:30 p. m.

President Al Kilmer also appointed a committee consisting of George Berry, chairman; Donald Reed, Roy Thomas, Alex Kachura and George Dall to plan the Christmas cheer program when candy and a toy will be distributed to all children of the fire district.

All members of the company have been invited to the Lake Katrine School on Oct. 11 for a meeting on planning in the township of Ulster.

Reports on Fires

Fire Chief Harry Lowe reported on recent fires. He said firemen answered a call on Linderman avenue, Kingston, where a barn, on fire, was saved.

It was reported at the meeting that use of the firehouse had been granted to students of the Chambers School religious program. Approximately 50 children are now receiving these instructions each Wednesday afternoon.

Edward Guziak was accepted as a new member of the company.

Woman Dies at 107

Salt Lake City, Oct. 9 (AP)—A gallant woman who walked a thousand miles to get here in 1860 and who conquered blindness at 91 died yesterday at the age of 107. She was Mrs. Ann Catherine Milne, who would have been 108 Oct. 27 on her birthday four years ago she said: "I've outlived everything and everybody I knew." Born Ann Catherine Jarvis in London Oct. 27, 1848, she came to America with her parents and six brothers and sisters in 1855. The family moved westward from Boston with the Mormon migration five years later, the children walking the entire distance from the railroad at Omaha to Salt Lake City.

Cigarettes Tie With Coronaries Is Questioned

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—A tobacco industry spokesman today questioned a medical report suggesting that smoking cigarettes may have some bearing on coronary attacks.

An article appearing in the Canadian Medical Journal said smoking cigarettes apparently affects the blood, usually increasing red blood cells and oxygen-carrying hemoglobin.

The article was written by Dr. Milton Earle Eisen, a New York city physician, and Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond, director of the American Cancer Society's statistical research section.

They reported they checked blood changes in 36 men and 21 women who agreed to change their smoking habits for the tests. Smokers quit while nonsmokers had some cigarettes..

Timothy V Hartnett, chairman of the tobacco industry research committee, said in a statement:

Leading authorities, including the American Heart Assn., have stated that present knowledge does not warrant a suggestion of causal relationship between cigarette smoking and heart ailments, and that much more reasearch is necessary before any conclusions will be accepted one way or another.

"This report...indicates the author's concern with this position. Their work must be studied in relation to other research going on in this field, some of which is being supported by the tobacco industry research committee grants."

Past Legion Head Is Named to GOP Post

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Harry W. Colmery of Topeka, Kan., a past national commander of the American Legion, was appointed today as campaign chairman for the veterans division of the Republican National Committee.

GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said in a statement that Colmery, a lawyer, will "coordinate the large volume of volunteer campaign work for Eisenhower and Nixon offered by exservicemen all over the country . . ."

Hall said Colmery, who headed the Legion in 1936-1937, will "donate his full time for the balance of the campaign."

Son Exonerated In Cleric's Death

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—A children's court judge Monday cleared 13-year-old Rancy Snyder of a juvenile delinquency charge in the fatal shooting of his minister-father last month.

Police said a rifle held by the boy discharged Sept. 22 when the Rev. Maurice Snyder, 41, questioned Rancy about his failure to mow the lawn at their home in suburban colonie. The father died the next day.

The boy's attorney said the rifle was discharged accidently while Rancy was playing with it in his room. He said the father and son were "very close."

Rancy, accompanied by his mother and the attorney, appeared before Judge Robert J. Laffin at a closed hearing. Records in the case were kept secret.

Several days after the shooting, the consistory, governing body of the Rev. Mr. Snyder's Boght Corners Reformed Church, sent a statement to the judge saying Rancy "has always been a normal boy with excellent habits and is well-considered in the church and community."

The Operating Engineers Union and the Teamsters Union represent workers on the project. Neither union nor management officials were available for comment. The 10-mile canal will connect the Eisenhower and Grasse river locks in the seaway.

First Dutch Men To Hear Program On Atomic Energy

The Westinghouse Electric Company of Pittsburgh, Pa., will furnish the program for the October dinner meeting of the First Dutch Reformed Church Men's Club Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. at Bethany Hall.

Alexander Yosman, program chairman, said that H. L. Hill, area sales manager of Westinghouse, will be in charge of the program.

Mr. Yosman, who is manager of the Kingston Housing Authority, has been advised that the program, as developed by the public relations division of Westinghouse, is entitled "A Dawn's Early Light" and depicts the uses and development of atomic energy for peacetime purposes.

In Joint Project

Westinghouse and the Duquesne Light and Power Company have been developing a joint atomic project for the past several years outside of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The use of atomic energy as a source of electric power raises many interesting questions for bankers, builders, electric companies and the general public.

THE H-BOMB BAN DEBATE

Adlai Stevenson is repeating his call for a ban on H-bomb tests in the evident earnest conviction that this would be a major contribution to peace.

In the heat of a political campaign it is not easy to examine such an issue free of partisanship. But the bystanders must try, because the question is vital.

To begin, the suspension of H-bomb or A-bomb tests would not eliminate the threat of nuclear warfare, since both the United States and the Soviet Union now have substantial stockpiles of nuclear weapons.

Nor would such suspension, in America's case at least, tend to limit the development of nuclear devices at a point short of the biggest imaginable bombs. According to U. S. atomic authorities, we are already satisfied we can explode a bomb of any size that could be delivered to a target.

We have been refining and fashioning nuclear weapons of smaller type.

Some of these weapons are of tactical nature, designed for use by ground forces. Others are being tried with the idea of confining fall-out within a limited area.

These are the arms we would be curtailing.

No doubt we would make a considerable impression upon neutral and other uncommitted peoples should we call off all tests. We might even find the Russians responding in kind and suspending their own.

But this problem has tricky aspects.

It is true as Stevenson says, that we would know the instant the Reds touched off another bomb and thereby violated the truce on testing. Yet suppose they feverishly prepared new devices in a given truce period and then suddenly, after eight or 18 months, let one go. We might find we had lost considerable ground in this vital field.

In such a matter the initiative would always be with the nation committed to immorality as a way of life, willing always to violate an agreement at whatever moment suited its strategic convenience.

We obviously canot afford to fall behind.

The Russians far outdo us in ground forces and to some extent in the air. Our reservoir of atomic force, believed to be substantially greater than Russia's, is our shield and the free world's as well.

Short of an atomic ban with real enforcement teeth, and a broad disarmament plan embracing all weapons and all manpower, we cannot in safety take any step which would weaken that shield.

It might bring us closer to war rather than to the peace.

CONSERVATION NEED

Anyone who thinks the conservationists are a bunch of impractical old fogies had better take a look at some recent statistics. A survey conducted for the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service by a private firm indicates that some 25 million Americans hunted or fished, or both, in 1955.

They spent nearly three billion dollars on their sport, including travel, equipment, license fees and so on. That is good for the economy, but it is less important than the strain that was put on the nation's wildlife and other natural resources.

The conservationists are doing something about this; they want to do more. They believe that more of the total spent on these popular sports should be plowed back into conservation practices that will assure continued sport in years to come. History proves that they are on the right track. Only through conservation now can we preserve good hunting and fishing for the generations ahead. That is a part of their heritage. We should not deny it to them.

COMMUNISM AND CORRUPTION

In the 1952 Campaign, the Republicans devoted themselves to an attack on Communism and Corruption and made quite a go of it. They attacked the Truman Administration for being soft on Communists and for permitting corruption.

In the 1956 Campaign, these two subjects are avoided by both parties, with the small exception that Harry Truman dragged into it his private red herring, Alger Hiss, and the Democrats have been suggesting rather mildly that the Eisenhower Administration was corrupt in the Dixon-Yates matter, but no bill of particulars is offered. There is also the suggestion that the administration of Illinois is more corrupt than usual, but then Adlai Stevenson, when he was Governor of Illinois, had his problems, too. In a word, on the subject of corruption nobody wants to get into the situation of the pot calling the kettle black.

As for softness on Communism, it is impossible to make comparisons. However, when Harry Truman was President, Congressional committees had the working assistance of the Department of Justice, particularly when James P. McGranery was Attorney General. It was the toughest period for Communists in the United States and it was the cooperation of Congressional committees with the Department of Justice and the FBI which broke the back not only of the Communist Party but also of the "front movements" that have done more damage to the United States than the Party itself by developing confusions from which this country is still suffering. That cooperation between the Department of Justice and the Congressional committees has not been continued during the Eisenhower Administration.

Although it was Harry Truman who wrote the letter in 1948 which closed Executive files to Congressional committees, his Administration was not as rigid in its attitude on this question as the Eisenhower Administration has been. As a matter of fact, it must be said that while James P. McGranery was Attorney General, the Communists and racketeers had the toughest time that they had known in this country and the FBI had the strongest administrative support that it had known since Harlan Stone was Attorney General. Whereas Harry Truman did speak that silly line about Alger Hiss being a red herring, it must be admitted that his Administration did a good job in the battle against Communism.

Of course, Stevenson cannot inherit either Truman's virtues or faults and no one can foretell what Stevenson's attitude will be toward the continued investigation of subversives by Congressional committees. His history opens no windows to that. But it can be said that the Eisenhower Administration, while it takes credit for the decrease in the membership of the Communist Party, cannot be regarded as tough on fellow-travellers and other dupes. It has been guided more by the easy-going anti-anti-Communism of the Fund for the Republic which nobody who has devoted his life to the cause will recognize as anti-Communism, but more as a trend to opposition to Marxism abroad as a matter of foreign policy and of condonement at home as a matter of civil rights.

At any rate, these two questions, Communism and Corruption, have thus far been ignored in this campaign as though by agreement, although the burden of taxes, the continued cost of armament, the entire nature of our foreign relations are results of the expansion of Communism to all the continents and our continued frustration in seeking a formula to met it. Synthetic issues are raised and die on the vine because in the climate of our day they seem so meaningless. Phrases are perpetrated and played with and burst like soap bubbles. But the words, Communism and Corruption, are eschewed as in the early years of the 20th Century, the word, cancer, was avoided. Even today, one reads that a person died of a long illness, meaning cancer. It is childish to use good words for bad things, just as it is dishonest to make a fetich of bad words. The campaign thus far has been neither on a high philosophic plane nor on a low punching-in-the-solar-plexus plane. It has been motion with little meaning.

As long as what we are dealing with are words, not ideas, not beliefs, not acts, but only words, we shall as a people be in trouble. It is like a headline I once read, "Is It Better to Be a Bonehead?" Better than what? And what is a Bonehead? And what is an egghead? Is there no way to get at the sense of things?

That Body of Yours

EXPOSURE TO THE SUN

It may seem late in the year to be talking about sun-tanning but there are many people who are permanently exposed to the sun because of their occupation and there are also an increasing number of people who "go South" in the wintertime and usually desire to return home with a good tan. For these there is an article by the Committee on Cosmetics of The American Medical Association which is worth heeding.

It is pointed out that the threat of malignancy (cancer) is not a concern of the occasional sunbather but the evidence is clear that chronic exposure to sunlight can be one of the major factors in the production of pre-cancerous and cancerous conditions of the skin. This is as important to the health of the ardent outdoor sportsman and sun enthusiast as it is to the farmer, the sailor, the sheepherder, or the cowboy who follow occupations in which regular exposure to the sun has long been recognized as an occupational hazard.

All individuals engaged in year-round outdoor pastimes as well as occupations should be urged to adopt protective measures. Most warnings should be directed toward the sandy-haired, light-complexioned, blue-eyed person because the dark-haired, brown-eyed, olive-skinned person and the Negro have much better protection against the damaging rays. However, even members of the latter groups are not immune to the effects of the sun's rays and they will suffer acute or chronic damage if exposure is sufficiently powerful, repeated, or prolonged. Complete immunity to the sun can never be assumed.

The merits of a suntan in improving attractiveness is a matter of individual taste and local customs. The rancher's wife may regard a darkened skin as undesirable at any time of year, whereas the city dweller in the north may place great pride in a skin darkened several shades in the winter. Since the improvement in skin appearance is a major objective in most sunbathing, a general warning is in order. The exact point at which the cumulative effects of the sun show themselves in unchangeable skin conditions is unknown and very different for every individual.

There is undisputable evidence that continued exposure to the sun weathers and ages the skin. The connective tissue of the skin undergoes degenerative (breaking-down) changes that are reflected on the surface by wrinkles and a coarsening in skin texture. The V of the neck becomes reddened and spotted hyperpigmentation (increased skin coloring) is noted over the exposed areas. The lips sometimes become scaly, fissured, and thickened. Horny abnormalities of different types and degrees develop. Some of these changes are the forerunners of skin cancer.

Farfetched and unusual as these symptoms may seem to the average sunbather, there is undeniable evidence that the effects of the sun are cumulative (build up from day to day) and at some point irreversible. Two or three months of sun-bathing for several years may result in a complexion that remains notably darker than its original color; this incompletely faded tan may persist for years even though only a temporary tan is desired.

The Eyes Have It

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — The United States gets its first look at six-foot, 200-pound Dimitri Shepilov, the new Russian foreign minister, at the United Nations Security Council meeting on the Suez Canal crisis, in New York.

Shepilov is sized up as quite a different customer from Foreign Ministers Molotov and Vishinsky, Ambassadors Malik and Gromyko, with whom the U. S. has had to deal before.

Secy. of State John Foster Dulles, Undersecretary Loy Henderson and their staffs got the first measure of the man at the preliminary meeting of Suez Canal users in London last August.

Shepilov, on arrival in London, asked for a private meeting with Dulles before the conference began. They had two meetings, both short.

The main thing the Russian seemed anxious to put across was that he and Dulles should always be frank and earnest with each other, and not disguise their views.

Since U. S. and U. S. S. R. diplomats have always spoken in this vein, these ground rules added nothing new.

In the London meeting, Dulles and Shepilov had two showdowns.

THREE PLANS were put forward at this conference. One was the American plan for international operation of the Suez Canal. Another was the Indian plan providing for Egyptian operation, with international advisers. Third was Shepilov's plan to end the London conference and call a new one with more countries present.

The Russian plan was not even considered, which was Shepilov's first defeat.

The idea behind the Indian plan was that V. K. Krishna Menon thought the Egyptians might accept it. He did not think Egypt would take the Dulles plan.

But 17 nations voted for the Dulles plan, and only five for the Indian proposal. Shepilov voted Russia with the five.

Later, however, Indonesia came in with a compromise which combined the U. S. and Indian proposals.

The western diplomats decided that with a few changes, it could be made acceptable, and this was done.

LOY HENDERSON was presiding when the crucial vote was taken. Dulles sat at the table whittling on a pencil, as he frequently does in conference. This was a form of doodling that used to upset Molotov no end.

Keeping up his whittling, but not making many notes, Dulles innocently asked Henderson to review the situation as to where they stood. Henderson declared that all nations were in agreement on the compromise, except Russia. He then turned to Shepilov and asked him if that was correct.

The Russian said that it was—and thereby he stepped into a diplomatic hole deeper than the Suez Canal.

For it showed Russia all alone, without a single ally on this issue. And it revealed that the Russian purpose in attending the London conference was not to find a solution, but to wreck it.

MOLOTOV, in the opinion of the diplomats present, would never have allowed himself to be pushed into such a hole. It was lack of diplomatic experience on Shepilov's part. He is not dumb, and turning 51 on Nov. 4, he will probably be around for a long time.

He is a South Russian Cossack who joined the Communist secret police before he was 21. He was sent to school in Moscow and advanced rapidly. He caught Nikita Khrushchev's attention and became a political commissar in the Red army, rising to the rank of major general in World War II.

After postwar service in East Germany he became head of Russian propaganda and four years ago was made editor of Pravda.

He was influential in swinging the Egyptian arms deal. Last February, on Molotov's retirement, he was made foreign minister.

This is his first trip to the U. S. But he is scheduled to be back soon, for the regular meeting of the U. N. General Assembly.

White vs. Negro Teachers As Estimated in Louisville

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 9 — Much praise has been heaped recently on the way the schools in Louisville, Ky., have been "voluntarily" integrated. But very little attention has been drawn to the startling revelations there concerning the comparative experience with white vs. Negro teachers. Nor have the effects of "permissive" segregation as practiced in Louisville — voluntary transfers in certain instances to all-white or all-Negro schools—been analyzed in the light of the Supreme Court's requirements that segregation be ended in the public schools.

Relationship Seen

Dr. Omer Carmichael, superintendent of Louisville schools, discussed the inferior quality of the Negro teaching in a copyrighted interview a week ago in "U. S. News & World Report," but what he said on this point has not been carried to the press generally by the national wire services. It seems to have a significant relationship to the very things that influenced the Supreme Court of the United States in its famous decision in 1954 calling for desegregation, and it could some day afford the basis for re-argument of the case itself.

Dr. Carmichael said flatly that "the average Negro teacher is not as good as the average white teacher."

"Now, you ask," said Dr. Carmichael, "about the quality of instruction. To me, that goes back more than anything else to the competence of the teacher. Degrees and hours of credit are not the sole measure of competence. That question has come up, I'll bet, in forty meetings in Louisville. I have replied unhesitatingly in Negro, white, or mixed groups that the average white teacher is considerably superior to the average Negro teacher in competence as a person to teach children."

"Why is that?" he was asked.

"It's just—it's culture. It's social, economic, environmental. How can a person come out of a slummy, crime-ridden area of the city, with poor churches and few of the things that go to enrich life—how can a person come out of such background the equal of one who comes out of a more cultured home in a more cultured community?"

"Were their own schools—the teachers' schools—as good?" was the next question.

Colleges a Factor

"With a very few exceptions, the Negro colleges in which the Negro teachers have, except for some who have gone north, received their teacher preparation, are just not as good colleges as the white colleges.

"I don't know — the anthropologists and the psychologists will probably jump right square down my back on it, but you just don't have as high a degree of competence among your Negro teachers as you have among your white teachers."

Dr. Carmichael's attention was drawn then to a recent article in a Negro weekly publication which claimed that in Kentucky 85 per cent of all the Negro teachers in elementary schools had bachelors' degrees from colleges, while the corresponding figure for white teachers was 58 per cent, and he was asked how he accounted for that difference.

"Degrees don't make teachers."

Dr. Carmichael also mentioned the figures available on the comparative testing of Negroes and whites when they applied for teacher positions. He said that at a meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in 1954, it was revealed how in one series of tests involving a good many hundred Negro and white applicants only 5 per cent of the Negroes on the tests "attained the score of the median of the whites."

What effect will all this have on the quality of education given in the mixed schools—the very point stressed by the Supreme Court's decision? Dr. Carmichael was asked if the mingling of the students in mixed schools would help the Negro student to get better scores. He answered:

"Yes, but not rapidly. It will be very gradual. You won't get the homes changed much. That will be slow. You won't get the community changed much. The Negro children taught by white teachers will have a little advantage over the Negro children taught by Negro teachers, in my judgment."

"What about the Negro teacrers teaching white children—will those students recede?" Dr. Carmichael was asked.

"Theoretically, yes. There will be a little difference in the quality of work done by the overage Negro teacher as compared with the quality of work done by the average white teacher; so whatever group of children a Negro teacher teaches, that group of children, in my judgment, will suffer a little."

Decision Cited

Yet the words of the Supreme Court decision say explicitly that the nine justices decided to order the abandonment of segregation because "even though the physical facilities and other 'tangible' factors mays be equal," the separation of children in public schools "solely on the basis or race" has been responsible for depriving "The children of the minority group to equal educational opportunities."

Now the issue that can be raised before the Supreme Court is whether, based on such experiences as in Louisville, the children of the majority group—the whites in that case—aren't being deprived of equal educational opportunities solely because of enforced integration of students' and teachers. When the court departed from legal grounds and entered the realm of psychology and sociology as a basis for overturning a historic decision, it was inevitable that more controversy would arise over what is or is not a good quality of education in America's public schools.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

One reason why newspaper people can not excuse the disgusting conduct of hero-worshipers who swoon for Elvis Presley is that, in the course of a career, we meet most of the great, in sport, politics, war and the arts. I have met six presidents, starting with Harding, a very good American; two British prime ministers and most of our important generals and admirals and some of the greatest warriors of the European nations.

Among the great souls I count Babe Didrikson and the man who introduced me to her, Grantland Rice.

She probably did not realize it, but Babe was really a beautiful woman—from the mouth down. I certainly do not mean to be unkind in saying this because I did admire that girl for qualities apart from her skill at all sports, qualities which accounted for her success. They were determination, courage, honesty and a candid but not immodest appreciation of her own superiority. Her body was slender but shapely and her legs were beautiful. They were ideal.

I retain a vision of the Babe winning the javelin throw at the 1932 Olympics in Los Angeles. She was as far in front of all the other girls in most field events as Sonja Henie was in figure skating. We could not make comparisons between the Babe and the girls of our swimming team, who were not only great athletes but beauties, because they were separate groups.

Rice wrote, however, in his autobiography, "The Tumult and the Shouting," that Babe's "points in diving were close to perfection and her test for the 100-yard swim was but a fifth second off."

In the javelin, Babe's first throw, as I recall the scene, was so far beyond the most optimistic possibility of the other girls that she turned, patting her palms as though to dust them, and walked back to the place where she had parked her flannel slacks to pull them on. I believe she stood pat on that one throw, not bothering to use her two more chances although I may be mistaken there. A few days later, Rice arranged a five-handed golf game at Brentwood in which he and Babe played Paul Gallico, Braven Dyer, of the Los Angeles Times, and me.

Rice was then shooting in the '80's. Gallico never was any good, I was always yearning to break 100, and Dyer was just about as bad. I have read that Babe broke 100 the first round she ever played, but I doubt that because on this occasion she was all over the place with her irons and Grant wrote that she had never been around before. She was marvelous off the tees, but she put that down to her long, delightful practice on the driving ranges which then dotted the country. She loved to drive and had hit thousands of those set-up wood shots and it is my impression that her irons did her dirt that day.

The Babe was a hard-bitten kid from a plain though neither poor nor humble family. She knew that she had to make her way in this world and she went at her career without waste of time or force on the amenities. Her manners were abrupt then, but I have read that in later years she adopted tact and courtesy.

The Babe had thin lips with almost no curve and her eyebrows were a straight line right across the bridge of her nose. By the beauticians' standards these were not pretty features surmounting that wonderful body and legs, but, after all, few girls deliberately assume the disadvantage that the Babe imposed on herself in refusing to paint on a new mouth and arched brows. I heard that in later years, Babe resorted to Elizabeth Arden's artful aids. The swimming girls included Eleanor Holm, a beautiful, mischievous kid heading for unhappiness in life, and Georgia Coleman, a lovely, gentle California girl who developed pituitary trouble in a few years which was attributed to the impact of her head on the water in the high dives. She had several dreadful operations and died young.

The Babe's marriage seems to have compensated for the heartaches of a plain girl which Gallico implied to her in a beautiful if rather cruel fiction story of a great girl athlete who scalded her pillow night after night because other girls were prettier.

George Zaharias, a football player and small-time heavyweight wrestler, was so affectionate and tender that he made the pair of them conspicuous in a world which took special note of mutual devotion because it was so rare. In her private life and her heart, therefore, the Babe was again the winner over many contempories who have seemed to be doomed to misery.

Colors for Confidence

Norman, Okla. (AP)—The occupational therapy staff at Central State Hospital, a mental institution is trying a new twist to gaining patient confidence. The women are wearing soft pastel pinafores instead of the stiff white uniforms. Mrs. JoAnn Padgett, staff director, says it is easier for the staff to "establish rapport with the patients if we aren't associated with the white worn by doctors and nurses."

Plant your dollars in the right places...

and they can grow more dollars for you. Any questions?

You: Yes, I have a question. How do you "plant" dollars?

We: By investing them in a good strong growing company . . . either by buying its bonds to get interest or its stock to get dividends.

You: And where do I find this good strong growing company?

We: The stocks and bonds of a great many are listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

You: But don't you have to be a plutocrat to buy stocks and bonds?

We: Good heavens, no. Two out of three shareowners have incomes under $7500 a year. In buying stock they've put their extra money to work to bring them extra income in addition to their jobs. Some are investing as little as $40 every three months through the Monthly Investment Plan.

You: How do I know which companies to choose?

We: Got money left over after paying the bills and providing for family emergencies? Next move is to get the facts about the company—profits, dividends paid, etc.

You: Which will grow money for me better—stocks or bonds?

We: When you buy bonds, the company owes you money. It promises to pay interest, usually at a fixed rate, and to return the amount of the loan. When you buy common stock you become part owner of the company and you share in its profits. If there are no profits there are usually no dividends. If profits are bigger your dividends are usually bigger. And if the company grows, both your income and the value of your investment can grow too.

You: Do I buy directly from the New York Stock Exchange?

We: No. You buy or sell through a broker. The Exchange itself doesn't buy or sell securities. It's the nation's great market place where the stocks and bonds of more than 1,100 leading companies are bought and sold by brokers for people like you.

You: Where do I start?

We: With our fascinating little free booklet "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS" which lists more than 300 stocks on the New York Stock Exchange that have paid dividends every year from 25 to 108 years, showing which ones yield from 5% to 6% at recent prices, which have paid progressively higher dividends over the last ten years, which are most favored by financial institutions . . . and much more, including information about the convenient Monthly Investment Plan which enables you to invest as little as $40 every three months.

You: Where do I get that wonderful booklet?

We: Clip the coupon or drop in on the nearest Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange. You'll get a cordial welcome there. They'll give you facts and advice and they'll help you to plan a sensible investment. Don't you think it's time to consider planting dollars to grow income? Send in the coupon now before you forget.

Two Seamen Are Facing Charges

San Francisco, Oct. 9 (AP) — Two San Francisco seamen were bound over to Marin county Superior Court on charges they beat up Harry Bridges, leader of a rival longshore union, at a Sausalito restaurant Sept. 21.

Municipal Judge Charles Brusatori ordered Fred Reppine, 35, and Donald Hansen, 28, both members of the Sailors Union of the Pacific, to the higher court on charges of "assault with force likely to produce bodily harm," a felony. The jurist threw out a second count on conspiracy.

Bridges, head of the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union, and Sally Stanford, owner of the restaurant and a former San Francisco night life figure, were the only witnesses at the preliminary hearing yesterday.

Slumped in the witness chair and talking in a low voice, Bridges testified he suffered two black eyes, a bruised jaw and a possible broken rib. He said he was in a rest room when Reppine and Hansen jumped him from behind and began kicking him in the face and body.

Miss Stanford declared the accused entered her restaurant at 1 a. m. and followed Bridges into the rest room.

"Mr. Bridges was on his hands and knees, covering his face . . . Reppine had hold of his tie and was kicking him in the mouth," she related.

Major Day is a native of Nashville, Illinois. Following his graduation from the University of Illinois as a chemical engineer, he entered West Point graduating with the class of 1944. He was commissioned in the Corps of Engineers and served in Europe with the combat engineers. On his return to the United States, he graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology with a masters degree in chemical engineering practice. He became the first director in the first School of Chemical Engineering at the University of Maryland. Later he was a member of the faculty at West Point, teaching in the chemical department. After service at the Rocky Mount Arsenal, he was made registrar of the West Point Academy in 1955.

At the conclusion of his address, Major Day will make a presentation of a citation in behalf of the Rotary Club to Robert Browning.

Democrats' Farm Supports Are for Politics: Benson

Richfield, Utah, Oct. 9 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson said Monday rigid price supports advocated by Democrats are "uttter mockery and deceit—parity for politicians, not farmers."

Benson declared the farm picture has improved. He said he is "convinced that now we have the tools we need to help our farm and ranch people build a prosperous, expanding and free agriculture."

Benson's talk was prepared for delivery (2 p. m., M.S.T.) to a gathering of central Utah farmers.

It was the first talk on what he announced last week as a barnstorming blitz of the nation's farm areas which will take him to 111 farm towns in three weeks. From here he planned to fly to the midwest.

Mockery, He Says

"Passing laws to hold prices up, then piling up surpluses to force prices down, is utter mockery and deceit," Benson said. "That is parity for politicians, not farmers.

"The general trend of farm prices and income—downward since 1948 except for the Korean War—has been checked. Since the first of this year the general trend has been upward . . . farm prices are higher than when the President vetoed the unworkable farm bill. . . .

"(The administration has) . . . adopted programs that will reverse the drift toward a socialized, tightly regulated agriculture, dominated and controlled by government, entangled in the coils of growing bureaucracy."

Sees Socialism

He charged that the Brannan plan proposed by some Democrats "would result in a socialized agriculture. . . .

"I certainly would not want to be responsible for establishing this kind of future for agriculture. No secretary of agriculture should become the director of rationing—the rationing of opportunity—in agriculture."

"That's right—now a little more off the top!"

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

From time to time I am asked about the Ulster County Gazette for January 4, 1800 which described the funeral of George Washington. It was published in Kingston by Samuel Freer.

I refer everyone to a 41 page booklet with illustrations of the copies and of the original of the above. This booklet is called The Ulster County Gazette by R. W. G. Vail and published by the New York Public Library, 5th avenue and 42nd street. To show you how popular our Kingston newspaper and this booklet about it are, the first edition came out in 1930, a second edition came out in 1931 and still a third edition in 1951.

This little paper of 1800 seems to be of national interest, that is the original, one of which is at the Congressional Library at Washington, D. C.

The following is taken from a page of this booklet telling how some originals were found. "There had been many rumors of originals but the most plausible seemed to be that reported by Clarence S. Brigham of the American Antiquarian Society. A Hudson Valley resident told him several years ago that he was the owner of the three original numbers of the Gazette for December 28th, 1799, January 4 and 11, 1800, but that he had lent them and had, so far, been unable to recover them. Mention of these three issues appeared on page five, of a previous article by the author of the booklet."

Then came November 1930 and the unexpected happened. The Library of Congress received an inquiry regarding three numbers of the old paper with the identical dates of the lost copies. "Knowing from our previous article that originals of these dates were still in existence but a few years before, the library was not slow in following up the lead and soon after had the satisfaction of placing all three originals among the treasures of its newspaper division."

The author further writes: "The three original Ulster County Gazettes were secured from Mrs. Mary Crawford Lydon (Mrs. James Lydon, Jr.) a descendant of Petrus, or Peter, Decker, a Revolutionary soldier who lived on the northwest side of the Shawangunk river in Ulster county. He served first as ensign; and on March 9, 1773, was promoted to first lieutenant in the Fourth Regiment of New York State Militia (New York State Archives, vol. 1, p. 301-302).

The Decker family lived near Kingston, where they attended church, and would naturally have subscribed to the county paper. Having served under Washington, it was to be expected that Lieutenant Decker would save those issues of the paper which told of the last days of his beloved Commander-in-Chief."

I give the following information because perhaps someone related to the Decker family may read this. The author also describes the December 28, 1799 issue of the Ulster County Gazette, which is also appropriately draped in black. We find the announcement of Washington's death as it first reached the people of the Hudson valley. There are extracts from two letters from Alexandria, dated December 15, the day after his death, giving the details of Washington's last hours and the preparation for the funeral. Another issue of Dec. 28, 1799 is owned by Harold D. Van Derlyn of Yonkers, whose family is related to that of Freer, the original publisher of Kingston.

Over 100 Attend Panel Discussion of P-TA

Woodstock, Oct. 9—More than 100 members and friends of Woodstock Parent Teacher Association heard a panel discussion this week entitled, "Spiritual Education of Children in the Home" by four distinguished spiritual leaders of the area, moderated by Steven Hyatt, principal of the Myron J. Michael School, Kingston. Panel members were Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom of Temple Emanuel, Kingston; the Rev. J. Dean Dykstra of Fair Stret Reformed Church, Kingston; the Rev. Dr. Clyde Snell of the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church, Kingston; the Rev. Herald C. Swezy, vicar of Highland, West Park and St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, Woodstock.

Mr. Hyatt presented the first question: "When do you begin to tell a child about God?" "Religious knowledge is acquired knowledge," the Rev. Dykstra observed. There is no standard time to begin, any more than there is a set date that the child will begin to walk.

The panel discussion was preceded by a brief business meeting with Leon Carey, president presiding.

Mrs. George Kelly reporting for the teen dance committee, announced that dances will be held for students in fifth through eighth grades and up. It is now planned to hold the first dance October 21.

Chairman of the program committee Loryne Connick said the November meeting would include a panel discussion by members of the Woodstock faculty entitled, "The Teachers Speak." In December two exchange students from Kingston High School, one from Kingston to Germany and one from Italy to Kingston, will be guests.

After some discussion a motion was passed directing the health and safety committee to proceed with plans for a bicycle safety program. It was suggested that the eighth graders might help with the planning.

Mrs. John Derry, chairman of this committee, is now gathering information.

On the subject of dances for adults it was announced that the P-TA cannot act as sponsor. Committees of members can, however, assume the responsibility for such dances if it is felt they will be supported.

Announcement was made of the P-TA convention in New York city Oct. 8, 9 and 10.

There will be election of a secretary at the November meeting to fill the vacancy created when Mrs. Harmon Christiana who moved away.

In connection with P-TA Membership Week, Mrs. John Marcato reported a paid membership of 109. Mrs. Marcato is vice-president of the local unit.

Refreshments were served after the meeting, provided by the kindergarten mothers Mrs. Andre Neher, Mrs. Rudi Baumgarten and Mrs. Victor Allen. This responsibility will be assumed by first grade mothers for the November meeting.

Area Architect Is Featured in Article

Woodstock, Oct. 9—An article titled "Something New In Glass Houses" appeared in the "This Week Magazine" of the New York Herald Tribune, Sunday, illustrated with color photos of the storm and shatterproof Geodesic design by R. Buckminister Fuller.

The famed architect owns a tract of land on Mead Mountain and plans to erect one of the glass globular houses there in the future. He has also lectured on the subject at the Woodstock Art Gallery some years ago.

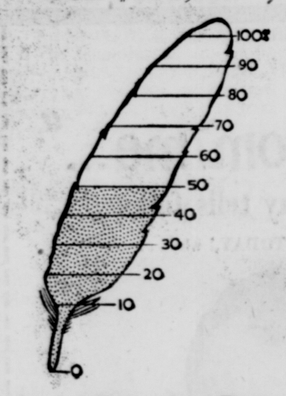

The storm-proof Goedesic design is built to hold up under 150 mile gales, lets in the sun, keeps out the rain, and "you can throw all the stones you want" at it. Shatter-proof, it reported that the assembly is quick and easy and that the Brooklyn Dodgers are interested in a larger one than that illustrated.

Little Falls, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—The diesel engine of a New York Central passenger train was derailed about a mile west of here early today when one of its wheels left the track. A spokesman for the railroad said the Cleveland limited was westbound at the time of the accident, but said no injuries were reported.

Co-Authors Write Woodstock Stage Hit in 7 Days

"Woodstock Confidential," the annual Woodstock production presented recently, was co-authored by two residents of the village in seven days.

Authors of the zany three-act farce, described in the review last week as "hilarious," were Holly Cantine Jr., and Evelyn Crawford.

The play, believed by many to be the wittiest ever presented by the Foundation, attracted standing-room-only audiences for its two-night stand.

Mr. Cantine, son of Holly Cantine Sr., of Saugerties, is a graduate of Columbia University with a major in anthropology. He recently sold a short story, "A Short History of the Clothespin Man Industry," to Harper's Bazaar. It will appear within the next two or three months.

E. E. Cummings, the noted American poet, has compared a recently completed story, "Second Chance," by Mr. Cantine, to Jonathan Swift. For the past 10 years Mr. Cantine has published a literary magazine called "Retort."

His wife, Dachine Ranier, noted poet and novelist, had a short novel published this year by Ballentine Books. It received excellent reviews.

Mrs. Crawford, a junior at New Paltz State Teachers College, who collaborated on the play, used some monologues from a musical comedy she wrote about 10 years ago. She was on the Dean's list last year at the college.

Mrs. Crawford has a daughter, Tobey, a junior at the Columbia School of Dramatic Arts, a son, Barry, now a junior at New York University, and a 10-year-old son, Tad, in the fifth grade at Woodstock School.

Asks Bets, Arrested

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—William Cunningham stood up in the stands at Yankee Stadium yesterday and shouted that all he wanted was a taker for a $10 bet on the Brooklyn Dodgers. The 33-year-old baseball fan got not one but two "takers"—a couple of detectives who took him away for questioning about a series of swindles. The detectives said Cunningham's shout attracted their attention. They noticed a growth on the back of his head and recalled an 18-month-old alarm for a man with that mark.

Senate Candidates Wax Hot On School Aid, Farm Prices

(By The Associated Press)

Republican Senate nominee Jacob K. Javits today continued an upstate swing in which he has described support of Democratic farm policies as "Tammany Hall thinking."

Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York city, the Democratic nominee, yesterday called federal aid to education "an urgent and immediate" necessity.

Javits, the state's attorney general, last night told a Binghamton rally that he had been charged by Wagner with voting against farmers while in Congress. He said of Wagner:

". . . He calls the blind, dead-end path of high, rigid, federal price supports voting with the farmer and I call that the kiss of death to farm hopes . . . this is Tammany Hall thinking to keep people . . . tied to government for their economic return."

Wagner told the 59th annual convention of the State Congress of Parents and Teachers in New York city that a shortage of schoolrooms and teachers was "one of the tragedies of our time."

Wagner said vast sums were being spent for defense and highways and national resources could be used effectively in education as well.

He offered a program similar to one advocated by Democratic presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson. Wagner called for federal funds for a "vast" school-construction program, for teaching fellowships to attact and hold capable teachers and for student scholarships.

Javits said in Corning that the Democrats' method of governing New York city had been "to fatten the payroll." At the same time, he said, the federal payroll decreased under a Republican administration.

The candidate said the Republicans had "a deep devotion to the private economic system" and the Democratic emphasis was on "what government can do better."

He said that, if elected, he would "continue to demonstrate my belief in social and welfare legislation." Javits said he believed "the private economic system hasn't begun to deliver the benefits that it can."

Mentions Civil Rights

Wagner said at a meeting of a local of the International Ladies Garment Workers' union that Javits had failed to speak up against the civil rights plank in the Republican platform.

Wagner said that his view that the Democratic civil right stand was not strong enough had been made known at the party convention. He said no voice was raised at the Republican convention for a stronger civil rights plank and "my opponent was at that convention."

Thinks of Tomorrow

Javits said on the Cornell campus at Ithaca that he was concerned with the "problems of tomorrow" while the Democratic party and his opponent were "under the shadow of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Al Smith and Robert Wagner senior."

The elder Wagner was the father of the Democratic nominee and, as a Senator from New York, was a strong supporter of the New Deal.

Firehouse Burns, Trucks Destroyed At Swan Lake

Swan Lake, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—Flames destroyed the frame firehouse and two fire trucks in this Sullivan county village today while volunteer firemen stood by fuming helplessly.

The fire also burned down an empty rooming house.

The flames silenced the automatic fire alarm system. No alarm rang and the volunteer firemen slept on in their homes until it was too late to help.

When the fire was discovered at 5:35 a. m., it was burning fiercely. The frustrated firemen found they couldn't reach their equipment.

The fire also knocked out telephone and power lines. Among those who could not be reached by phone was the fire chief.

Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined.

To Review Decision On Closing Plants

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—The U. S. Supreme Court will review a lower-court decision that employers who negotiate jointly with a labor union may not close all plants if the union strikes against one.

The U. S. Circuit Court in New York has ruled that seven linen-supply companies were guilty of an unfair labor practice—a lockout—in closing when a teamsters union local struck the eighth member of their association.

The plants are in Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Dunkirk, N. Y.

The Circuit Court overruled a decision by the National Labor Relations Board that the companies were justified because the strike supported demands against all eight.

The NLRB said the strike against one plant carried an implicit threat of a strike against all.

The Circuit Court ruled that the union had withdrawn from multi-employer bargaining when it struck one plant.

The Supreme Court agreed yesterday to review the decision, which was appealed by the NLRB.

South Solves Trump Problem

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

West opened the queen of spades, and the defenders took two tricks in this suit before South could get started on today's hand. South ruffed the third spade and then had to play the hand in such a way as to lose only one trump trick.

It does no good to hope that one opponent has the doubleton king-queen of trumps. You can capture one of these cards with the ace, but then you will have to lose a trick to the queen and a second trump trick to the ten. The winning combination is the doubleton king-ten or queen-ten in the West hand. If this happens to be the situation, you can limit the loss to one trick by proper play. But if the trumps are divided in some other way, you will lose two or more trump tricks.

When the hand was played, South made the correct decision by leading a low trump from his hand as soon as he gained the lead. West stepped up with the queen of trumps, as good a defense as any.

Declarer won the club return in dummy and led the jack of trumps through East. When East played low South led the jack of trumps ride for a finesse, thus assuring his contract. If East had covered with the king, South would have played the ace and would have drawn the last trump with his nine.

West could not gain by playing the ten of hearts instead of the queen on the first round of trumps. Dummy would play the jack to force out East's king. Then South would regain the lead and would lead out the ace of hearts to capture the queen. The nine of hearts would then be good enough to draw the last trump.

Board Will Elect New Chairman

Schroon Lake, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—The Essex County Board of Supervisors will elect a new chairman Oct. 22 to succeed Horace E. Noxon, 50, a Schroon Lake businessman.

He resigned last week by letter from Chicago. Noxon gave no reason but wrote: "All the books are in order."

He also quit as Schroon town supervisor.

The town board yesterday accepted his resignation from the job to which Noxon had been elected for a term ending Dec. 31, 1957. A board spokesman said Noxon was automatically off the county board when no longer town supervisor.

The date for election of a new county chairman was set by the Essex board at a meeting yesterday at Elizabethtown. Noxon had been elected chairman for a one-year term ending in December.

Noxon's annual salaries from his town and county posts totaled $6,100.

Schroon members of the county Republican committee last night named Richard F. Drake, a peace justice and Schroon Lake businessman, as party candidate for supervisor in the November election.

Key Point Studied In Murder Trial

Philadelphia, Oct. 9 (AP)—Judge Joseph Sloane today studied a key point in the trial of Frank J. Ellsworth for the murder of wealthy Mrs. Lulubel Rossman—whether a convict should be permitted to give testimony which earlier helped send to prison another man accused of the slaying.

Paul Yermish, Ellsworth's attorney, argued yesterday that Edward C. Nixon, now in a Georgia prison, should not be permitted to take the witness stand.

Nixon, at the trial of Raymond P. Wilson, 33, of Tulsa, Okla., said Wilson told him Ellsworth killed the 76-year-old widow in her hotel room here in July, 1955. Nixon and Wilson were cellmates in a Las Vegas, Nev., jail at the time.

Yermish argued that this was "a confession which can be used only against the person who made it."

Theodore B. Smith, Jr., assistant district attorney, declared that Wilson's alleged confession was admissible because it was part of a continuing conspiracy."

Smith said the conspiracy was aimed at "fencing" or changing the money the state claims was taken from the victim.

Ellsworth, 36, of Tampa, Fla., and Omaha, Neb. was ill yesterday with an intestinal inflammation and did not attend the trial session. The day's testimony dealt with telephone calls between Tulsa and Miami.

The state charges that the calls were made by the two men who ploted to rob Robert W. Thomas, former deputy sheriff of Dade county, Fla., and Gus A. De Moss, suspended Tulsa police radio dispatcher. Thomas and De Moss are to face trial later.

TWA Would Cover Chicago to Miami

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Trans World Airlines contended today that vacationists and others flying between Chicago and Miami are getting inadequate service.

In a bid to make TWA the third airline serving that route, vice president E. O. Cocke of TWA said the present operators, Delta and Eastern, lack sufficient planes to handle the traffic in the busy winter season.

He said TWA, on the other hand, ha. a "pool of aircraft and crews during that time because its transatlantic business falls off then."

Cocke's testimony was prepared for a Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) hearing on applications of 10 carriers for routes from the Great Lakes to Florida.

Estimated Rates Are Given on Onteora School

Estimated tax rates and budget totals projected to 1962 for taxpayers in Onteroa Central School district have been announced by the board of education.

The increases in the tax rate for taxpayers of the six townships in the school district reflect the cost of the proposed $1,125,000 school expansion bond issue for the construction of three regional elementary schools at sites in Lake Hill, Allaban and at Brown's Station.

The estimated budget totals projected to 1962 are as follows:

1957-1958	$ 900,504

Enough Is Enough

Dickinson, N. D. (AP)—A series of shenanigans perpetrated on the Don Conlon family here didn't strike the Conlons as funny. First, someone telephoned an undertaker that there had been a death at the the Conlon home. The mortician responded, but found everyone well and reasonably happy, although a bit perturbed. Shortly, a plumber appeared. He'd been called to the Conlon home by telephone. About the time the Conlons had bade the plumber goodbye, a moving van chugged up. It wasn't needed, either. Then a telephone repair man showed, also in response to a phony summons. The Conlons got tired and put in a bona fide call themselves—to report the monkey business to police, who are investigating.

KEEP HIM WAITING?

"My girl friend has just told me something that I can hardly believe is true, and so I am writing to you to find out if it is really so. It's about women who keep men waiting. Whenever I call for her, I am always kept waiting anywhere from 10 to 20 minutes before she puts in an appearance. When I asked her why she was never ready, she said that it was correct to keep a man waiting so that she won't seem too eager. Will you give me your opinion about this."

I can't imagine who taught her that rudeness is politeness. I agree that if she were to sit out on the front steps looking up the street she might be considered overeager, but to be ready promptly is one of the very first exactions of good manners — at least in her own house. Even if she were meeting you downtown for lunch, she should be no more than one or at least two minutes late. You in this case must be right on the dot because a girl should not be kept waiting for a man in any public place.

When to Receive

Dear Mrs. Post: I am to be married shortly. My fiance has talked about returning to the reception after getting into our street clothes before we leave on our wedding trip. We will go home to my house to get dressed and then go back to the hall. It is only a short distance from my house. I have never seen or heard of this and I would like to know if it would be proper.

Answer: No, you receive immediately after you are married in your wedding clothes, then change and leave from your house.

New House Owners

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me if, when moving into a new house, the new house owners should invite their friends to visit them or are they expected to come without being asked.

Answer: There is no rule—either is correct.

Cocktails are a popular form of entertainment. Mrs. Post's leaflet E-26, "Serving Cocktails," includes the invitation and suggests how to serve cocktails. A public hearing before Acting District Engineer Rauer or his representative, New York State Department of Public Works, was scheduled for this afternoon at the town hall, Highland, relative to the proposed plan for realignment of State Highway No. 1536, known as Route 299, Highland-New Paltz.

The state proposes to realign this route from a point near its junction with the Thruway and extending eastward to route 9-W. The proposed alignment is south of the present route for some distance to the west of Highland and then runs north of the existing route further to the east. The new alignment would bypass numerous properties now on the state route. Residents along the present alignment in many instances object to their properties being by-passed. The new alignment would join route 9-W north of the village near the Gerh auto parts premises.

Supervisor John J. Gaffney proposed to file a brief on behalf of the town and the property owners who object to the realignment.

One Issue Holds Schatz Signing

A reliable source reports that one issue now separates the Schatz Manufacturing Company of Poughkeepsie and its bargaining union in the six-week strike of some 1,100 workers.

Members of the United Auto Workers Union voted to strike at midnight August 31 upon expiration of the old contract with the ballbearing plant.

What the final issue dividing management and labor is could not be ascertained.

Bargaining representatives met at the Nelson House, Poughkeepsie, twice on Monday. They will meet again tomorrow.

It is believed that discussions may reach the crucial stage on Thursday. Some optimism is reported on both sides.

In case of settlement tomorrow workers would probably not return to the plant until the following Monday. A meeting of the union to ratify the terms of the new contract would be necessary.

"FISH" HOOKS LICENSE—Marie Fish, 28, left, has hooked James Bass, 31, and she has a license to prove her right to make the catch—a marriage license, issued by Mrs. Inez Harrington, Lillington, N.C., license registrar. Rising to the bait of the unusual combination of names, a fishing magazine published at Oxford, Ohio, will fly the couple to New York City after their marriage in Angier, N.C.

Women Organize For GOP Votes In Ulster County

Mrs. Lee Rognon, acting Republican vice chairman of Ulster county, today announced the appointment of Mrs. Donald Allen, of New Paltz, as Registration Roll Call chairman of this county. She heads a temporary, countywide organization known as Registration Roll Call, which assigns women to act as deputy workers in every election district and precinct.

The group will be drawn principally from the membership of Republican women's clubs throughout the county, and will serve as an auxiliary to the regular party organization in a concerted push to bring out the maximum Republican registration and vote in 1956.

Registration Roll Call has been organized at the personal request of President Eisenhower, who recently voiced his belief that women hold the key to the registration question. In past elections, he pointed out, many eligible Republican voters, by failing to register, not only forfeit their right to vote but reduced their party's statewide pluralities to a degree where the whole principle of majority rule was threatened.

Instructions on procedure have already been received from Miss Bertha Adkins, assistant chairman, Republican National Committee, and Miss Jane Todd, vice chairman of the New York Republican State Committee, to whom progress reports will go. Included is the text of 1956 amendments to the New York state election laws, with a reminder that as a result of action by the Republican State Legislature, many persons in this county formerly unable to register and vote because of age or infirmity have now been restored to the privileges of citizenship.

All Republican women wishing to volunteer their services in connection with Registration Roll Call are asked to communicate with their county roll call chairman, Mrs. Donald Allen, at New Paltz or the Ulster County Women's Republican Headquarters here.

Chief Ends Exile

London, Oct. 9 (AP) — Seretse Khama, ex-chief of the African Bamangwato tribe, flew home to Bechuanaland today as a private citizen after six years of exile in London. His white wife, the former Ruth Williams, and their two children plan to join him late in October in Serowe, clay hut capital of the British protectorate. The 33-year-old former chief said before taking off: "I have renounced the chieftainship as I have always been prepared to do and now I hope to assist my people to develop a democratic system, to raise our standard of life and to establish a happy, healthy nationhood."

Ulster Planning

Dr. William Pretsch, and the zoning commission, whose chairman is Daniel Morehouse, and the town board will attend the meeting.

Most Important Program

Percy Bush, town supervisor, in urging residents to attend the meeting, said the town development program now under way is probably one of the most important town programs ever undertaken.

Mr. Clark has had wide and varied experience in the field of city planning and development during the past 20 years. He is well-known throughout the country for his work in metropolitan and state planning, as well as that of devising solutions for problems associated with the growth of cities and their surrounding areas. He has been called upon as a consultant to advise various governmental agencies on problems of planning and has served as consultant to the United Nations in the field of city planning.

Plans for 12 Cities

Since 1950 he has headed his own consulting firm, advising communities and private groups on their development problems. At the present time he is engaged in preparing plans for the solution of current problems and for the guidance of future development in 12 cities and towns in the eastern part of the United States.

Mr. Clark recently completed two years as president of the American Institute of Planners, the national professional society in the field of city, town and regional planning. Apart from his professional activities, he is chairman of the city planning commission of his home community, Rye, a position in which he has served for the past nine years.

Of most recent interest, Mr. Clark has been called upon by Governor Ribicoff of Connecticut to serve as consultant and chairman of the governor's advisory committee to assist in replanning and redeveloping the flood-ravaged communities of that state.

Ceramics on Program

It also was announced today that Mrs. Elizabeth Spadaro and Mrs. Helen Spadaro, two experienced ceramic workers and teachers, will be on hand to help adults in their favorite hobby. An exhibit of the pupils' work of these two teachers is on display in Herzog's window, Wall street.

Hoderath said today that new classes in any other subject will be formed provided qualified teachers may be found and if there is a nucleus of from 12 to 15 interested persons for each class.

A small registration fee is required of all students.

The adult education bulletin listing the proposed courses for the school year 1956-57 is now available and will be sent to anyone upon request.

The program director also pointed out today that no student enrolled in regular day school will be admitted to the adult classes.

Four new courses also may be offered in the adult education program, providing enough interest is shown, Mr. Hoderath said.

One of these is the basic course in public speaking and discussion. It is primarily a course which will provide basic skills in effective public speaking with emphasis on the individual contribution of each member of the group so that he or she can gain poise, self-confidence and ability in actual participation.

Another new course, called "Voice and Articulation" could be offered to the public for people who need help in correcting speech and voice problems. The need for clear distinct speech in the business world is obvious to anyone with hopes for advancement, it was pointed out.

In response to several inquiries, a course in Home Decoration is being considered. This course is designed to give the homemaker a workable knowledge of the principles underlying the furnishing of the home and to be able to make use of these principles in furnishing and decorating their own homes. It will include the role of color, selecting furniture, fabrics in the home, the use of accessories and furniture arrangement.

A course in electronics will be organized if the demand warrants, Mr. Hoderath said. It will be an advanced course and applicants should have an acceptable background in D.C. and A.C. theory as well as transformer theory and connections. Contents include: theory of high vacuum tubes, theory of gas filled tubes, rectifiers, filter circuits, phase shift control of gas filled tubes, oscillography, photoelectric tubes, cells and circuits, inversion, switching, voltage regulators, sequence controls and motor control.

Providing enough interested persons enroll for any of these classes, they may be started without delay. Information may be obtained by calling Mr. Hoderath.

Blast Kills Two

Milwaukee, Oct. 9 (AP)—An explosion in the boiler room at the Ampco Metals, Inc., building on the city's southwest side yesterday killed two and injured 19 persons. Mrs. Clara Baxter, 35, an office worker, was killed in the blast. Charles Plenke, 49, a clerk, died in a hospital several hours after the explosion. Company officials said steam hissing from the boiler used in the building's hot water heating system indicated it may have become overloaded and blown up.

Swaps Buckles In Track Test; Fear Leg Break

Camden, N. J., Oct. 9 (AP)—Swaps, one of the world's greatest race horses and winner of the 1955 Kentucky Derby, broke down while exercising this morning at Garden State Park. Early reports indicated he might have broken his left hind leg.

Stumbles on Track

The big California horse, who has earned $848,900 in winning 19 of 26 starts in three years' of racing, stumbled midway through a six-furlong workout and his regular exercise boy, Chester White, pulled him out immediately.

Swaps buckled over on the track and a horse ambulance removed him to his stall in Barn Q.

A veterinarian took X-rays to determine the extent of the injury.

Swaps is owned jointly by Rex Ellsworth and John W. Gailbraith.

The horse was at Garden State, where a 25-day fall meeting opened today, to prepare for his appearance Oct. 24 in the $50,000-added Trenton Handicap. From here Swaps was scheduled to go to Laurel for the Nov. 11 running of the world-famous international handicap.

Music Hath Charms

Charleston, S. C. (AP)—A flock of 6,000 hens in St. Andrew's Parish are doing their work to music. Mrs. Ferdinanda L. Waring is piping radio music into the ten houses with results she says are good. The music, she reports, has stimulated the hens to better egg production, and has resulted in fewer cases of fighting among them.

$350 Reported Taken From Po'keepsie Safe

A safe at the General Ice Cream Co., 74 Pershing avenue, Poughkeepsie, was cut open with a "torch" some time during the night and looted of $350 in cash.

The Poughkeepsie Police Department reported there was no indication how the building had been entered.

The burglar, or burglars, "burned a hole in the safe" with an acetylene torch.

The Freeman inquired how big the hole was. "Big enough to get the money out," was the reply.

Gambler Shot to Death

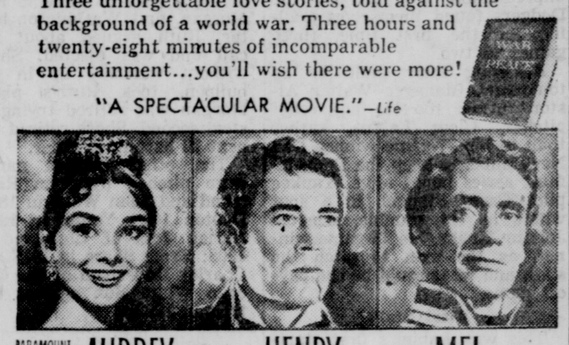

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 9 (AP)—Gambler Frank Cates, 61, who narrowly escaped with his life in an explosion Aug. 2, was found shot to death last night on a road near Watauga, northeast of here in Tarrant county. The body of the ex-convict was found lying beside his car on a dirt road. He had struck in the head by a shotgun charge. Cates was critically wounded Aug. 2 when a dynamite explosion wrecked a house here. The blast was set off when he answered a ringing telephone.

Brooklyn Pins Hopes on Clem Labine to Keep Series Going

Bob Turley, Grim Or Johnny Kucks Yankee Choice

By JOE REICHLER

Brooklyn, Oct. 9 (AP) — Their backs to the wall, just as has been the case all year, the Brooklyn Dodgers today were staking their World Series hopes on friendly Ebbets Field in the battle with the New York Yankees for the world baseball championship.

Beaten for the third consecutive time at Yankee Stadium yesterday, 2-0, in a history making perfect game performance by unpredictable Don Larsen, the Dodgers found themselves trailing for the first time, three games to two.

Realizing their could be no tomorrow, Manager Walter Alston turned too his ace relief pitcher, Clem Labine, rather than to his 27-game winner Don Newcombe, to keep the Dodgers' faint series hopes alive. Yankee pilot Casey Stengel, in a spot where he can gamble, selected Johnny Kucks, his 18-game winner, as the man to pitch the sixth and what could be the payoff game.

First Start

This was Labine's first starting assignment after relieving eight times in three series. In his one relief effort during this series, he yielded one hit and one unearned run in a two-inning relief job in the third game. He started only three games during the entire season, all in the September drive and twice he pitched fine games. He wound up with a season record of 10-6.

Kucks has appeared in two games, both times in relief, and has given up three hits and two runs in two innings. Although Stengel leaned toward Kucks, there was a possibility that he might change his mind at the last minute. In that event, the Yankee pitcher would be Bob Turley, the hard-throwing righthander, who also has pitched in two series games, striking out three, giving up no hits, no runs and no walks in 1 1/3 innings. His season record was 8-4.

It is extremely doubtful, in fact, the odds are better than 40,000 to 1 against it, that either of today's pitchers will duplicate Larsen's nerve-tingling epic that had every fan in the gathering of 64,519 hanging breathlessly on every pitch.

Maglie the Victim

The 27-year-old righthander's incredible performance embellished by Mickey Mantle's third series home run and Hank Bauer's run-producing single, was at the expense of Sal Maglie, who literally pitched his heart out in a gallant but losing effort. It was Maglie, the 39-year-old Cincerella Man, who turned back the Yankees in the series opener and who went into yesterday's game as the sentimental favorite.

At the end, however, it was Larsen, the fun-loving, devil-may-care native of Michigan City, Ind., who had the huge, emotion-filled crowd cheering wildly as he fired a third strike past pinch hitter Dale Mitchell to climax the greatest game ever pitched in a World Series.

Larsen did it, to with a most revolutionary delivery, a no-windup service. Each pitch was served from a standing delivery that he adopted less than a month ago.

In the first perfect World Series game, Larsen made but 97 pitches, threw three called balls to only one batter—Pee Wee Reese in the first inning—and struck out seven. So amazing was Larsen's feat that only four batted balls had a chance of being rated hits. One was a foul by inches. Three drives were converted into outs by spectacular Yankee fielding.

Carey Makes Stop

In the second inning, Jackie Robinson smashed a vicious grounder off Andy Carey's glove at third base for what momentarily appeared a certain hit. But Gil McDougald, the alert Yankee shortstop, recovered the ball in time to nip Robinson at first by a half step. In the fifth, minutes after Mantle had put the Yankees ahead, 1-0, with a blast into the right field stands, Gil Hodges sent a drive that appeared headed for the alley between center and left for extra bases. But Mantle raced across the turf to make a sensational backhanded catch.

On the next play, Sandy Amoros connected with a pitch and rocketed a drive toward the right field stands that promised to tie the score. At the last second, however, the ball curved foul—by inches. Then, in the eighth, Hodges once again was victimized by a thrilling Yankee play. Gil hit a tricky, low liner to the left of Carey. The Yankee third baseman lunged for the ball and caught it inches above the ground.

The biggest drama was saved for the ninth, however, with everyone in the nail-biting crowd realizing that each pitch was a big one—one that could end big Don's dream of a lifetime—Larsen calmly disposed of Carl Furillo, Roy Campanella and Mitchell without even as much of a minor scare. One roar went up when Furillo lifted a fly to right. A second roar followed when Campanella bounced out weakly to Billy Martin. When Mitchell watched a fast ball whiz by for strike three the Stadium was in an uproar.

There wasn't a soul in the stands who didn't realize that Larsen had accomplished the most spectacular of all spectaculars. In the history of baseball this was only the seventh perfect game pitched in the major leagues and only the fifth in baseball's modern era.

Robertson the Last

The last perfect game in the majors was achieved by Charley Robertson of the Chicago White Sox on April 20, 1922 when he vanquished the Detroit Tigers, also by a 2-0 score.

For Maglie, the defeat was a heart breaker. The Barber, pitched a better game in defeat than in his winning effort against the Yankees last Wednesday. He permitted only five hits, walked two and struck out five.

With two out in the fourth and the bases empty, Mantle, after fouling off several two-strike pitches to left, lashed a curve into the right field seats.

The Yankees got their second run in the sixth. Carey opened with a single and after Larsen sacrificed, Bauer came through with a single between third and short to make it 2-0. Joe Collins followed with another hit but Mantle then hit into an inning-ending double play.

Don Larsen's Was 7th Perfect Game In Major History

Don Larsen's perfect game yesterday, first in World Series history, was the seventh pitched in all major league history.

One of them, that of Ernie Shore of the Boston Red Sox in a game against the Washington Senators on June 23, 1917, was adjudged a perfect game after examination of the records.

Babe Ruth started as the Boston pitcher and was removed by the umpire after giving a base on balls to Ray Morgan, first Washington batter. Ruth argued about the call and was ejected. Shore without warming up in the bullpen, took Ruth's place. Morgan was retired trying to steal second. Shore retired the next 26 batters in order.

The other perfect games were pitched by John Richmond and John Ward in 1880; Denton (Cy) Young in 1904; Adrian Joss of Cleveland in 1908; Ernie Shore in 1917 and Charley Robertson of the Chicago White Sox against Detroit in 1922.

Larsen Praised By Ernie Shore

Winston Salem, N. C., Oct. 8 (AP)—Ernie Shore, one of the handful of men who have pitched a perfect baseball game, said "I never saw a cleaner game" than Don Larsen's perfect performance in the World Series today.

Shore, now sheriff of Forsyth county, N. C., saw every play of today's game on a television set in his office.

Shore estimated that the Yankee hurler probably pitched more balls (97) against the Dodgers in his 2-0 victory than he did that June 23, 1917, for the Boston Red Sox against Washington.

The Greatest Pitching Performance in History

Playboy Larsen Was All Business in Historic Series Win

Brooklyn, Oct. 9 (AP)—A hundred and fifty years from now, and a hundred and fifty more, baseball fans will speak in awe of a tall, easy-going Scandinavian named Don Larsen who pitched the first perfect baseball game in the World Series.

What about this fellow, Larsen?

"He loves his fun," says a New York Yankee teammate. "I don't guess he's one for keeping training and observing curfews. But he's one heck of a pitcher when he wants to be."

"He's been typed as strictly a playboy," says a baseball writer who travelled with the team all year. "You get the idea he is a wild roustabout who goes around busting up beer joints. That's not so at all. He has a devil-may-care attitude. He's really a swell, friendly guy.

"Just an overgrown boy," says Bill De Witt, assistant to Yankee general manager George Weiss. De Witt held the same post with the St. Louis Browns, who first signed Larsen.

"This fellow is a good pitcher," says Casey Stengel, the Yankee manager. "Wonderful equipment and potentiality. I always felt he could do it if he set his mind to it."

On a chilly, windy Monday, Oct. 8, 1956, Don Larsen set his mind to it—and made baseball history.

Twenty-seven members of Brooklyn's fence-wrecking forces walked to home plate at Yankee Stadium. Twenty-seven promptly walked back to the dugout—victim of Don's blazing fast ball and tricky slider.

It was the first no-hit, no-run game in World Series history.

Larsen demonstrated a bit of his complex personality later when, pale and breathless, he answered machinegun questions of his Herculean pitching feat.

"I'm not much of a prayer man," he said. "But I kept asking somebody up there to help me get through this. My knees got so weak in the ninth inning I thought I was going to faint."

Then somebody asked him what he planned to do that evening. "What I do every evening," he said. "I'll have a couple of beers and go to bed."

Larsen is 27, good-looking and crew-cut. He looks years younger. On the road, he rooms with Rip Coleman, young Yankee pitcher. He likes his beer. He is a comic book fan.

During spring training last April, Larsen drove his automobile into a tree at 5 o'clock one morning, suffering no physical damage but getting involved with the traffic court.

Everybody expected Casey Stengel to crack down on his "problem child." But Casey called Don into his office, gave him a strong dressing down and then sent him out on the field to do wind sprints. They were the only punishment.

"Casey likes Larsen," a Yankee said. "His two favorites are Larsen and Billy Martin. I think it's because they've got a little devil in them."

Until he pitched the greatest World Series game of all-time, Larsen's mark in baseball had been an undistinguished one.

He was a crack baseball and basketball player at San Diego High School—having moved with his family from Michigan City, Ind.—when he was signed by the Browns after graduation in June, 1947. The scout was Art Swartz and both De Witt and Larsen agree on the price Don received for signing. "I got nothing," Larsen said.

He pitched 1947 and 1948 with Aberdeen, Kansas, in the Northern League, moved to Springfield of the Class-B Three-I League in 1949 but was sent down to Globe-Miami of the Texas-Arizona League because of a sore arm.

There he played outfield and for a period it appeared he may never become a pitcher at all.

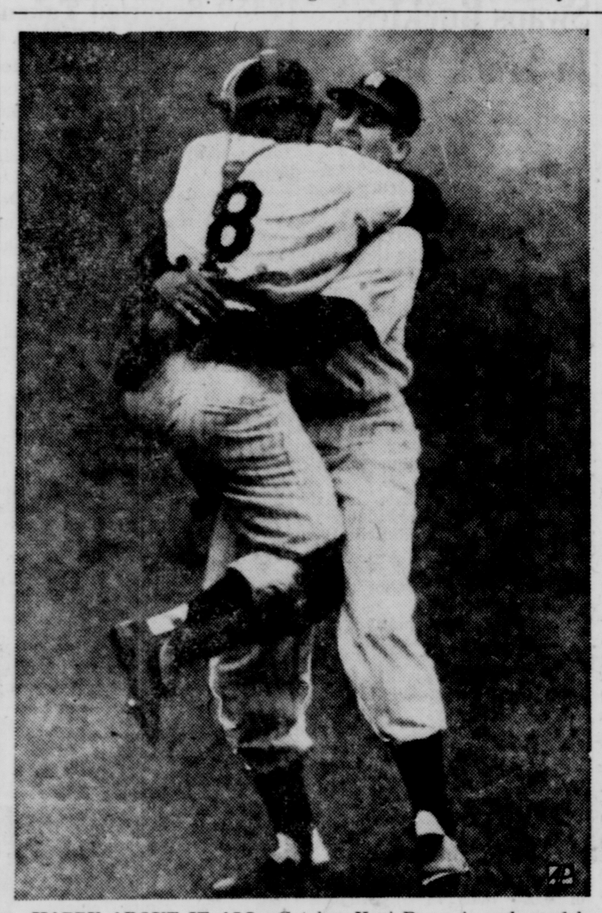

His tour of minor league duty included Wichita in the Western League and Wichita Falls of the Big State (1950) and San Antonio of the Texas League (1951-52) before he moved to the big leagues with the Browns in 1953. He was Browns property when the franchise moved to Baltimore.

He won only seven games in 1953 and only three in 1954, while establishing the dubious record of 21 defeats in 1954, the season's high.

Larsen was virtually an unknown pawn in the big 18-player trade between the Yankees and Baltimore Nov. 18, 1954. The big man in the deal was fast-baller Bob Turley, who was listed as a possible Yankee starter today in the sixth World Series game.

Don was ineffective in 1955, being sent down to Denver, but he was called back in time to win eight of the nine finishing games in the New York pennant stretch. He was equally effective in the late rush this year.

"He's got it," is Casey Stengel's sage sumup, "it's just a question of whether he'll use it."

Pinelli Thrilled In Farewell by Larsen's Feat

Brooklyn, Oct. 9 (AP) — Don Larsen of the New York Yankees will never forget his history making pitching performance against Brooklyn. Neither will Babe Pinelli, senior member of the National League staff of umpires. For it was Pinelli who umpired the first perfect game in World Series history—the last time Babe ever will work behind the plate.

"It was the greatest game I ever worked in," Pinelli said happily as he tried to relax in his dressing room after the game. "And it was also my last behind the plate. Yes, I'm through after this series. Boy, what a way to bow out."

It was as though this thing had been planned for him, as though this whole incredible pitching masterpiece had been staged as a special going-away gift for him.

"It's unbelievable," he declared, "simply unbelievable. What a game, what a game. I never saw anything like it before. I umpired four no-hitters in regular season play but none of them compared to this. The strange thing about those no-hitters is that all were previously pitched by Dodger pitchers. Now I work a no-hitter pitched against the Dodgers—and a perfect game, at that. Boy, I'll have something to talk about and remember to my dying day. What a thrill. Nothing I ever saw could hold a candle to this one."

Babe stripped down to reveal a dull bluish bruise just below his chest. It was the mark left by a wicked line drive hit by Gil McDougald of the Yankees that had struck him the day before.

"I'm a pretty lucky fellow," he said. "I might have been hurt bad, and would have missed this one. That would have been a shame. I haven't missed one since I came up to the National League in 1935.

Larsen's Mother Avoided Jinx by Ignoring TV Set

San Diego, Calif., Oct. 8 (AP) — Don Larsen's mother "kept a rule" and helped him win his perfect World Series game today.

His sister cried with joy. And so did some of his friends. They watched his great performance on television.

Mrs. Charlotte Larsen, 61, a housekeeper at a La Jolla home for retired people, said:

"I make it a rule never to watch Don when he pitches. seems every time I watch him, he loses. So, I just don't do it.

She added happily: "I didn't today and see what happened."

Bevens Praises Don's No-Hitter

Salem, Oregon, Oct. 8 (AP)—Floyd (Bill) Bevens, who came within one out of pitching a no-hitter in the 1947 World Series, today applauded Don Larsen's perfect no-hitter.

"It was wonderful," said Bevens after watching Larsen's feat on television.

Bevens, also a Yankee, had two out in the ninth inning against the Dodgers in 1947 series before pinch-hitter Cookie Lavagetto rapped a double off the right field wall that, coupled with earlier walks, gave Brooklyn a 3-2 victory. Bevens had walked 10.

"Larsen pitched a lot better game than I did," said Bevens, now a salesman for a trucking firm.

Syracuse Nats' Crack Cagers Here October 17

Coach Al Cervi's Syracuse Nationals, finalists with the Philadelphia Warriors in the Eastern NBA playoffs last spring, will be at full strength for their exhibition game against the Rochester Royals, Wednesday, Oct. 17, at the Kate Walton field house.

The contest is sponsored by Kingston Post, No. 150, of the American Legion and replaces the Legion's annual ball.

Coach Cervi, who played in Kingston in the New York State League of Frank "Pop" Morgenweck's era, has his 1955-56 combination intact, plus a squad of sparkling rookies.

Schayes Top Star

Top name with the Nats, of course, is Dolph Schayes, former New York University star, and consistently among the NBA's top five scorers over the years.

Supporting Schayes are George King, Billy Kenville, Paul Seymour, Dick Farley, Ed Conlin, Early Lloyd, Red Rocha, Jim Tucker and Johnny Kerr.

The Nationals have achieved three firsts, three seconds and a fourth place since Coach Cervi took over during the 1948-49 season. They topped the Eastern Division of the NBA in 1949-50 and 1951-52, won second place in 1948-49, 1952-53, and 1953-54.

Two years ago the Syracuse squad won the NBA championship with virtually the same array of stars that will show here.

Reserved seats may be purchased at the Tommy Maines Sport Shop in Kingston.

Weatherman Wins Out

Rain washed out the stock car program at Victory Speedways in Middletown for the 21st time this season saturday night.

Weather permitting, racing will resume this Saturday. First race is 8:30 p. m.

Charles E. Duryea is said to have operated the first successful American automobile at Springfield, Mass., April 19, 1892.

KHS Faces Poughkeepsie in DUSO Here Saturday

Opportunity comes knocking Saturday at Dietz Stadium for the football fortunes of Kingston High School as the Maroons oppose Poughkeepsie High in a game that may once and for all settle the DUSO League championship picture.

Unexpected turn of events last weekend altered the course of the race and set the stage for the 'crucial' clash. Instead of a three-cornered fight, the chase appears now to revolve around the Maroons and Pioneers.

Port Tied

The abrupt about-face was caused by Poughkeepsie's surprising 7-7 tie with Port Jervis Saturday. That knocked the bottom out of the Red Raiders chances and dropped the fight right into the laps of KHS and PHS.

Although just three league games have been played, it looks like a Poughkeepsie - Kingston battle right down to the wire. Port counted itself out of the race with the tie after losing to KHS 6-0.

Newburgh and Middletown are the supposed weak-sisters of the league and can't be touted as serious threats. The Middies, in fact, looked weak in losing to Poughkeepsie 13-6 while the Goldbacks have a 30-7 win over Wappingers Falls, a Class B school, and a 38-0 pasting at the hands of Mont Pleasant to show.

Both Unbeaten

The Maroons and Pioneers are both enjoying undefeated seasons, but Kingston has the better record, winning three games while the Bridge City eleven has taken two and tied one. KHS's wins were over Christian Brothers Academy, Port and NYMA, 20-13, last Friday. Poughkeepsie routed Beacon in its opener 26-7 prior to beating the Middies and tying Port.

The winner of Saturday's encounter will have a stranglehold on first place. The Maroons more so as they will need just one win over their other loop rivals to clinch a tie and possibly cinch the whole thing.

Poughkeepsie is the defending DUSO champion and naturally, will be going all out to protect its crown. The Blues went through last season unbeaten so they will have the added incentive of keeping their streak alive.

Title in 1950

Kingston's last outright DUSO championship was in 1950. But in 1954 the Maroons shared the title with Middletown.

Another feature of the contrast will be the battle of strategy between coaches Bill Burke and Sam J. Kalloch. The two crafty pilots have a long history of friendly rivalry which should add something extra to the excitement.

Everything points to a corking scrap for the expected large turnout at the stadium. The only thing for sure is that past performances and records mean very little when the two traditional rivals tangle.

Horse Sense

Hillsdale, Mich. (AP)—A team of horses found its way home from a farm where the two had been taken more than a year ago. Farmer Charles Myers of nearby Osseo said the horses broke down a pasture fence at his son's farm and trotted back home along a busy highway. Myers found them grazing contentedly in a field near his barn, none the worse for the 10-mile trek.

Keating Scores TD

Maroon Frosh Conquer NFA for 2nd Win, 6-0

Bob Keating's 60 yard touchdown run was the margin of difference as the Kingston High School freshman defeated Newburgh Free Academy 6-0 yesterday at Dietz Stadium for their second straight win.. The Maroons ripped Arlington 19-0 in their opener.

Keating scored on an end run after taking a pitchout. He was aided by some beautiful downfield blocking.

The jaunt capped a successful afternoon for Kingston who dominated the play throughout. The Goldbacks were kept in check by the locals hard-charging forward wall spearheaded by tackle Terry Corkery and guard Milan Pece. Their deepest penetration was to the KHS 40.

The Maroons made threatening gestures most of the afternoon and had one score called back in the first period. Terry Kelly exploded for 55 yards, but the TD was nullified by a clipping penality.

Coach Jack Gilligan was impressed by his team's defense. He praised the work of Corkery, Pece and Keating, in particular. Gilligan said that Corkery 'made one-third of the tackles' and Pece 'was great backing up the line at middle guard.' Besides scoring the only touchdown, Keating played alert ball on defense, intercepting three passes.

The Maroons face Port Jervis on the road next Monday in their next start.

Miceli Upsets Giovanelli at St. Nick Arena

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Some of the "smart money" bettors around the country must be checking on their sources of "information" today following Joe Miceli's victory over Danny Giovanelli.

From even money at noon the odds shot up to 4-1 favoring Giovanelli at fight time. And there were reports from out of town that bookmakers had taken the fight "off the boards." That means they had stopped taking bets because of one-sided betting and rumors.

Miceli Wins Decision

If there was a betting coup in the making, Jolting Joe broke it up with his decisive unanimous decision in the telecast 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena last night.

Miceli, an experienced, one-time contender making his first appearance in his native New York this year, belted handsome Danny repeatedly with left hooks and left jabs, dropping him in the second round. Giovanelli was up at two, took the mandatory 8-count from referee Ray Miller, and lots more punishment the rest of the way.

Miller had it close, 5-4-1, for Miceli while the other two officials scored it bigger for the winner. Judge Joe Eppy had it 7-2-1 and judge Bert Grant 6-3-1. The AP card made it Miceli, 8-2, giving Danny the sixth and eighth rounds by narrow margins.

Brenner Comments

"When I heard of the odds going up I went down to Miceli's dressing room to tell him and his handlers," said vigilant Teddy Brenner, the matchmaker and promoter at the arena.

"I heard of the funny changes, too," said Harry Stickever, Miceli, manager. "I told Joe he had to win this fight more than any other."

"The first time I heard about the odds was when Harry told me," said Miceli. "So I went out to win it big. I was happy to win, no matter how close anyone scored it. Now bring on Vince Martinez or any of those other welterweight contenders. I've got a wife and kid and I need these pay days."

NFA Jayvees Rip Maroon, 47-0

Newburgh Free Academy's powerful jayvee football team blasted Kingston High school 47-0 yesterday at the Hill City.

The win came on the heels of an impressive 24-0 trouncing of Poughkeepsie last week. The Maroons lost 6-0 to Arlington in their opener.

Kingston's next start will be at the stadium next Monday against Port Jervis.

Kingston lineup:
Left End, D. Van De Mark

State Fair Hopes To Resume Racing

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—State Agriculture Commissioner Daniel J. Carey says legislative approval and public reaction would be major problems in a move to conduct pari-mutuel horse racing at the State Fair.

He said yesterday he did not know when, if ever, there would be such racing.

Carey commented after the fair advisory board passed, for the second successive year, a resolution asking funds for a new, covered grandstand and modern clubhouse facilities on the Fairgrounds here.

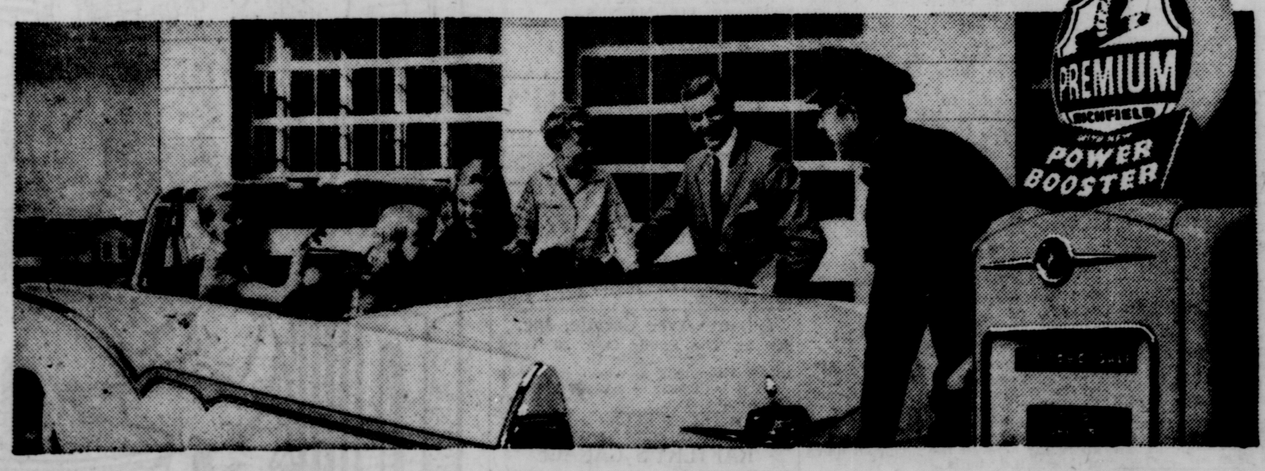

The resolution did not refer to racing.

But fair director William Baker said that the board was "hoping for the return of horse racing." Harness racing was dropped from the fair program several years ago.

The Agriculture Department has jurisdiction over the fair.

Walt Rishoff's 32 markers and 20 by George Holstein provided the winning margin for Caruso's against the Jackets. John Burris canned 25 points for the losers.

Oklahoma Still Holds No. 1 Spot

(The Associated Press) ...

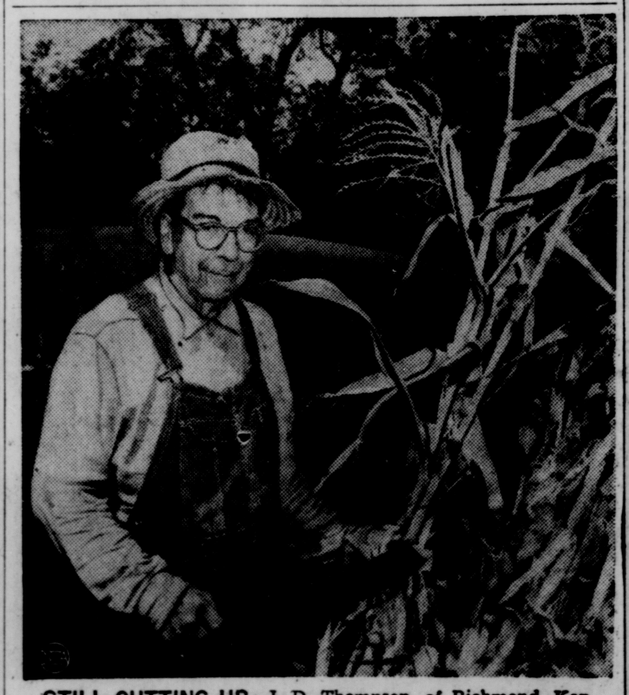

Oklahoma still is the nation's No. 1 college football team, but some people are hard to convince.

After rolling up a 66-0 score against Kansas State, setting a major college record with their 33nd consecutive victory and making it 54 without a defeat against Big Seven Conference rivals, the Sooners retained their No. 1 rating in the Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters. But Michigan State continued to push Oklahoma for the top spot. It was far from unanimous.

Oklahoma was first on 76 of 130 ballots cast this week and appeared somewhere on every one of them. Michigan State, a 9-0 winner over Michigan in the big game of the past weekend, drew 32 first place votes. The other 22 were scattered among eight other institutions. Looking a little further, the Sooners were 1-2-3 on 109 ballots and State's Spartans were in the first three one 101, with 49 votes for the runner-up spot.

In the point totals on the usual basis of 10 for each first place vote, 9 for second, etc. down to one for tenth, Oklahoma piled up a 120 point margin, 1,185 to 1,065.

The also-rans were well behind and closely bunched. Georgia Tech, idle last Saturday, polled 793 points to hold third place and Texas Christian edged out Ohio State for fourth, 740-735. Then came Tennessee, Mississippi, Southern California, Texas A. and M. and Baylor completing the first ten.

STILL CUTTING UP—J. D. Thompson, of Richmond, Kan., is 82 years old, but he still gets out there and harvests his own corn. He thinks mebbe he's a mite old-fashioned because he uses a corn knife in these days of mechanized farming. One concession to the times is that he drives his car, instead of his horses, to the cornfield. He does his own housework and is proud of his cooking—especially his rhubarb pies.

Advised on Exams For Job Promotion

State employes returning from military duty were reminded today by Director Howard Shurter of the local Veterans Service Agency that they have the right to request "comparable promotional examinations" in lieu of such tests that were held while they were members of the armed forces.

Mr. Shurter cautioned veterans, however, that there is a 60 day time limit on requesting such comparable examinations.

He said the veteran must make his request, for all promotional examinations held during his absence on military duty, within a period of 60 days following his return to work but the veteran need not actually file his examination application during this period.

Director Shurter said that Section 246 (5), of the Military Law, grants such employes the right to a comparable examination upon their return to state service. He said that this section provides, in part: "If a promotion examination is held while a public employe entitled to participate therein is on military duty, such public employe shall be given a comparable examination, provided he makes request therefor within 60 days after restoration of his position . . ."

Veterans wishing further information and advice relative to promotional examinations that were held during their absence are urged to visit the Ulster County Veterans Service Agency, 32 Main street, or the branch offices in Ellenville, Highland and Saugerties.

Benjamin Schmier a legal aid society attorney representing Vetter, told Magistrate James J. Comerford in adolescent court: "I've tried 50,000 cases and I plead with you to believe me that this is a good boy. He won't run away. He has no place to run."

Scores Canal Talk

Moscow, Oct. 9 (AP) — Soviet Fleet had harsh words today for talk that the United States might dig a new canal between the Atlantic and Pacific across Nicaragua. Readers of the navy newspaper were told it had been announced in Washington the next session of Congress would discuss a Nicaraguan canal. Red Fleet said this was only an attempt to blackmail Panama, spurred by "the greatest owners of moneybags and American admirals preparing their fleets for predatory, imperialistic wars."

Accuses Hodge Of Lying to Senate Group

Chicago, Oct. 9 (AP)—Sen. Fulbright (D.-Ark.) today accused Orville E. Hodge, former Illinois state auditor, of lying to the Senate Banking Committee.

Fulbright, chairman of the committee, made the accusation during an angry exchange of words while Hodge was in the midst of his second day of testimony.

The hot words were tossed during a duscission of what had been done with money obtained from cashing certain fraudulent state checks.

"I don't think you're being fair with me," Hodge protested.

"You are lying to this committee," Sen. Fulbright rejoined.

Hodge, a Republican politican, was forced to quit his state position in July. He was sent to prison to serve 12 to 15 years for embezzlement.

An audit of Hodge's thefts has not been completed. But the total has been estimated at about 1½ million dollars.

Sen. Fulbright and Hodge were unable to agree how much had been returned to the state.

Admits Killing Father

Cleveland, Oct. 9 (AP) — A frightened 14-year-old boy walked out of a woods early today, signalled police with his flashlight and surrendered, eight hours after he shot and killed his father. Robert Zavalnak left in the woods, with his sleeping bag, the rifle he used to fire three bullets into his father, Joseph, J., 42, after an argument during the supper hour last night at their home in suburban Brecksville. State Highway Patrolman Clarence Dragi and Brecksville Constable Walter Zimlich to whom the boy surrendered, recovered the weapon. After firing a bullet into his father's head and two more shots as the man lay dying on the kitchen floor, Robert sped away in the family's station wagon, leaving behind three notebook pages of a "confession" and "last will and testament."

The charge of being an unlicensed operator was dismissed in City Court today and a fine of $5 was imposed on the charge of having no registration. He was also given a ticket for parking over six inches from the curb and on that charge a $2 fine was imposed.

Santa Fe, N. M., Oct. 9 (AP)—Road blocks were thrown up in eastern New Mexico today for two convicted slayers who last night kidnaped a guard at the nearly abandoned old state prison and escaped. State police said Jimmy C. Williams, 29, and Willy Carpenter, 55, kidnaped guard Jose A. Vigil from the lightly guarded old prison last night, stole his car and released him several hundred miles away, 50 miles north of Roswell. The two, both Negroes, were serving long sentences on second degree murder convictions, Williams from Otero county and Carpenter from San Juan county.

Actress Fails To Appear for Television Show

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—The show did not go on last night for husky-voiced actress Margaret Sullavan.

The 45-year-old stage and screen veteran failed to show up for the starring role in a CBS-TV "Studio One" drama.

Whereabouts Mystery

Later her husband said she was ill and in a hospital. But her exact whereabouts remained a mystery.

Reached by telephone at the couple's Greenwich, Conn., home, Kenneth Wagg, her husband, said:

"My wife was taken ill this morning. She hasn't been well for some time . . . she is in a hospital and I would prefer not to say where she is."

"Studio One" officials said Miss Sullavan attended rehearsals Sunday but did not appear for a final run-through yesterday afternoon.

Film Is Used

The cast of the hour-long program stood by until the last minute, hoping the star would turn up.

Miss Sullavan was to have played the lead in "The Pilot," the story of Sister Aquinas, a Roman Catholic nun and educator.

When the actress did not appear, CBS replaced the scheduled show with a film of a previous "Studio One" drama—"Remarkable Incident at Carson Corners."

60 Area Farmers

pool to take care of this resort business."

Mr. Silkworth, Alison Fitchett of Fitchett Bros. Dairy, Poughkeepsie, and Edward Petilinz of Petilinz Dairy, Newburgh, were on the stand at the hearings in the Arlington Hotel from about 10 a. m. to 2:30 p. m. on Monday.

Mr. Fitchett and Mr. Petilinz also testified in opposition to extension of the milk order.

Hope for Conclusion

This is the fourth month of hearings held in New York state. It was not anticipated that the hearings would last so long and those conducting them expressed the desire to bring then to a conclusion very shortly.

Dealers from Utica and Binghamton areas will testify today. Hearing in Binghamton will probably continue for the rest of the week before agriculture officials conducting them move into the metropolitan area. No New York city dealer has yet testified.

Buchanan Committed

Mayville, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—Lonnie Buchanan, 23-year-old Dunkirk Negro, indicted for the murder of his wife, has been declared insane and ordered committed to Matteawan State Hospital at Beacon. Buchanan's committal was ordered yesterday by Supreme Court Justice John S. Marsh on the recommendation of psychiatrists who have been examining him for the past six weeks. Buchanan was indicted for first degree murder in the Aug. 8 slaying of his wife, Bessie, 18. Her mutilated body was found three days later outside Brocton. Buchanan fled to Kalamazoo, Mich., where he surrendered to police Aug. 16.

Contract Action Started

Trial of a contract action brought by Peerless Casualty Company against John Bordi of Highland was taken up for trial in Supreme Court Monday afternoon and continued today. The question involved is whether the price had been written and was in force at the time of the loss. Oliver, Scully and Delaney appear for plaintiff and Michael Nardone for defendant. A counter claim is brought by defendant who seeks to cover the cost of defending the action.

The Institute for Crippled and Disabled has had designed an electric mat which will open its doors automatically to the slightest touch of a patient's wheelchair or crutch tip.

SHOULD HE GRASP THOSE HELPING HANDS?—Clarence E. Robinson, Jr., 27, of Council Bluffs, Ia., out of work and in debt, perches on tiny ledge of a railroad overpass at Council Bluffs Oct. 8 as unidentified officials extend helping hands and plead to let them pull him to safety. After 40 minutes, Robinson permitted himself to be hauled from his perch and was taken to a hospital for observation. The ledge is about 35 feet above busy railroad tracks. (AP Wirephoto)

Poughkeepsie Editor Heads AP Press Assn.

Albany, N. Y., Oct 9 (AP)—Charles G. Murray, editorial director of the Poughkeepsie New Yorker, today was elected president of the New York State Associated Press Assn.

Murray succeeds J. Leonard Gorman, managing editor of the Syracuse Post-Standard.

Gilbert P. Smith, managing editor of the Utica Press, was elected vice president. Norris Paxton, chief of the Albany Bureau of The Associated Press was reelected secretary.

The association elected officers at the closing session of a two-day meeting.

Last night, Victor Reisel, labor columnist, told the group the finances and manpower of the American labor movement are "the sinew and muscle of the Democratic party."

Riesel, whose eyesight was destroyed when acid was flung at him last April, said labor was pushing Adlai Stevenson "mighty close" to the presidency

Alaskan Vote Is Called Pivotal

Juneau, Alaska, Oct. 9 (AP)—Voters in this sprawling territory cast ballots today in an election that will test once more the adage: "As Alaska goes, so goes the nation."

Voters from Juneau to Nome, some 1,000 airline miles and three time zones apart, selected candidates in balloting that had the attention of stateside political trend-seekers.

Election eve appeals from President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson attested to the status of an election Alaskans feel is an accurate barometer of things to come in the states.

In Washington, however, Chairman Leonard W. Hall of the Republican National Committee said it would be wrong to read any national trend into the Alaska results.

Hall said in a statement:

"In response to inquiries about Alaska I'd like to say that the key issue in today's election is the local issue of statehood.

"The presidential candidates are not on the ballots. Any attempt to construe the election as reflecting a national trend will, therefore, be erroneous.

"The Republicans hope to do better than in 1954 but Alaska can not and will not forecast the outcome of the November election."

Townships to Talk Planning With City Wednesday

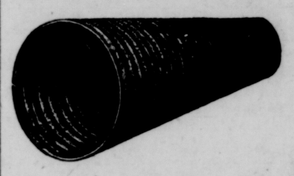

At a meeting called by Mayor Frederick H. Stang for 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at city hall, members of the town boards of townships in the immediate Kingston area will discuss a proposal for establishment of a planning program for the area.

With the coming of the Thruway, IBM, the opening of the new bridge across the Hudson river just north of Kingston and numerous other developments the area is already begining to feel the impact of industrial growth. Many feel it is time to pool the ideas of all concerned and discuss a general plan for the area.

At the meeting Wednesday evening members of the town boards of the area will have an opportunity to hear that proposition discussed from the viewpoint of the New York State Department of Commerce and the State Division of Planning.

A meeting of the directors of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce is being held this evening at which time it is expected urban development will be discussed.
